LIGHT CAR VOGUE.

165 MILES AN HOUR.

NEW YORK, Saturday.

A flying boat, containing three persons, flew from Aberdeen (Maryland) to Port Washington (New York State), a distance of 188 miles, in eighty minutes. It maintained a speed of 165 miles per hour, between Philadelphia and New York.—(Reuter.)

An interesting comparison with regard to the world's wheat crop, issued by the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, shows that although the United States is more than fourteen times as large as France in square miles, the American wheat crop is only 2.4 times the French wheat crop.—(Reuter.)

Baby Wasted and Quite Helpless

Could not Move from Sheer Weakness. Cured by Dr. Cassell's Tablets.

Mrs. C. Rogers, 89 George street, Pontypool, Mon., says: "Dr. Cassell's Tablets have worked almost a miracle in curing my little boy, Fred, of wasting. He was only 14 months old when it came on, and very soon he was helpless. He could not move a muscle. Then he began to waste away with diarrhœa till he was nothing but skin and bone. He vomited, too, and even went blind with weakness. For five months he couldn't see at all. Really he was a dying child, and though I did everything possible there seemed no hope.

"Then I tried Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and imagine my delight when shortly after he began to move. He improved rapidly, and now at 2½ years he is just full of health and activity, and as plump as a little dumpling."

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the perfect modern home remedy for Nervous Breakdown, Malnutrition, Wasting, Anæmia, Sleeplessness, Indigestion, Kidney Trouble, and Premature Decay. Specially suitable for nursing mothers and women of middle age. Sold by chemists and stores in all parts of the world. Prices: 1s. 3d. and 3s., the 3s. size being the more economical. Dr. Cassell's Co., Ltd., Manchester.

PLATFORM AND STAGE.

THIS WEEK'S AMUSEMENTS.

"The Man Who Came Back," a play by George Eckert Goodman, will be produced at the Gaiety Theatre this week. The story is that of a dissipated youth who is sent abroad by his father, an English millionaire, in the hope that the change will enable him to find his feet. He deliberately sinks lower and lower, and drags with him a girl whom he meets in San Francisco. The shock of revulsion opens their eyes, and the remainder of the play shows their struggle back to decency. The cast includes Miss Grace Sweeting and Mr. George Manship. The production is the work of Charles B. Cochran, whose successes, "The Better 'Ole" and "The League of Notions," are well known. "The Man Who Came Back," it should be added, is not a war play. There will be matinees on Wednesday and Saturday at 2.30 o'clock.

A musical farce entitled "French Beans" will be presented at the Theatre Royal this week by Fred Karno, who is already favourably known to Dublin music hall audiences. The cast includes Mark Daly, Louise Fredericks, Ellis Holland, Tom Shenton, Berenice Melford, and Florence Helm. Miss Maud Aston and Co. will appear in a character comedy sketch, "A Priceless Pair," and will be supported by Florence Vie and a West End company. The programme will also include Dan Harlow, comedian and mimic; Hart and O'Brien, "in laughs till off"; Gladys Wright and John Hartley, in songs, and the Royal bioscope.

The programme for this week at the Empire Theatre includes Will Fyfe, the character comedian, who will provide the principal attraction. A return visit will be paid by Signor Cappelli, the tenor vocalist. The Apollo Trio are to give a "statue" act, whilst other numbers will be by Bain and Hill, Frank Cass, Gloriana, Three Dublin Boys, and Ethel Moon.

J. G. Graham and Lerlina Harrington head this week's bill for the Tivoli Theatre. They will give a sketch entitled "A Daughter's Devotion." The programme will also be contributed to by Fred Cooper, the Australian bushman and stock-whip expert; Marjorie and Laws, a "decidedly different duo"; Tom Fagan and his "pack"; Stanley Dean, character impressionist, in "The Last Guest"; James and Wally Comerford, acrobatic comedians, and Edward Harris, ragtime violinist.

To-morrow and during the week the Abbey Theatre Company will present "The Revolutionist," by Terence J. MacSwiney. Owing to the extreme length of the play, performances will commence each night at 7.45. There will be a matinee on Saturday, at 2.30.

J. Malachi Muldoon's "The West's Awake" will be produced at the Queen's Theatre this week, under the direction of Mr. Ira Allen. The cast includes—Messrs. Ira Allen, Tom Moran, Frank Lee, M. O'Flanagan, George Griffin, Frank Francis, P. J. Bourke, Peter MacCormac, H. J. Condron, Charles L. Keogh, and Miss Evelyn Lund, Miss Gertie Pigott, and Miss May Murnane.

All this week the Carlton Cinema will show "Kissing Cup's Race," from the famous poem by Campbell Rae-Brown, with Violet Hopson and Gregory Scott in the principal parts. The story contains all the elements which go to make an exciting drama, finishing with a thrilling race. Joe Plant, once a "crack" English jockey, plays the part of Bob Doon. An adventure of Sherlock Holmes will also be shown.

To-day a Vitagraph super-production, entitled "The Fortune Hunter," starring Earl Williams, will be shown at the Corinthian Picture House; and also a Sherlock Holmes adventure, entitled "A Scandal in Bohemia." On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday a Hepworth film entitled "Helen of Four Gates," will be the attraction.

Miss Jean Nolan will give a song recital in the Abbey Theatre on Wednesday afternoon, October 19, at 3.15. On this occasion Miss Rhoda Coghill will assist with some piano solos. Dr. J. F. Larchet will be the accompanist.

The Dublin School of Elocution and Dramatic Art has re-opened for the autumn session. The training includes physical culture, voice production, emotional expression, and gesture. Particulars can be had on application to Miss Cora McHardy-Flint.

PHŒNIX PARK RACING.

CAPITAL SPORT.

LA TOUCHE PLATE.

VICTORY OF PATSY.

A capital afternoon's racing rewarded the large company that foregathered at the Phœnix Park Club enclosure on Saturday, and the summer-like weather which prevailed enhanced the enjoyment of the visitors, amongst whom were Their Excellencies the Lord Lieutenant and Viscountess FitzAlan of Derwent. The going was in excellent order, and fields panned out much better than had been expected, in view of the coughing epidemic in the Curragh stables, whilst backers fared right well, and altogether the reunion passed off very successfully. Although the day was so fine, visibility was by no means satisfactory owing to a haze which at times spread over the course, and as a result it was no easy matter to discern the colours of the riders until the horses were close home.

The chief event, the La Touche Plate, brought out a good-looking party of two-year-olds, and, with most of them fancied by their connections, there was a brisk market on the race. Patsy, who represented the powerful Ruanbeg stable, eventually wound up in most request from O'Malley Mor, Mountbellew, Dibla, and the stable companions, Glenhead and Milewater, also came in for substantial support. Very quick off the mark, the favourite early established a useful lead, and, although Hector's Pride materially lessened the gap a furlong from the end, and got to his girths, Mr. McAlinden's colt shook him off, and his victory was achieved in smart style.

Next in point of interest came the sporting match between My Violet and Sunny Bird, who had finished first and second, respectively, in the Exchange Plate at Dundalk last month. They now met on similar terms over the same distance and with the same jockeys riding, and partisanship ran pretty high, so much so that there was practically nothing between them in the betting. Sunny Bird adopted cutting down tactics, and a hundred yards from the winning post appeared to have taken the measure of the mare, but the latter then threw out a determined challenge, and won cleverly by three-quarters of a length, as compared to the neck which divided them in their previous race. Sunny Bird's swerve at the junction of the courses cost him a little ground, but not sufficient to affect the result, and the Dundalk running was confirmed.

Zenon, who has been figuring with such success over fences, was confidently expected to account for the opposition in the Abbotstown Plate, run over a distance of a mile and a quarter. He, however, found one too good for him at the weights in Nellie Gough, who landed a 6 to 1 chance for Conyngham Lodge. She was ridden by M. Wing, who supplemented his laurels in the succeeding event, the Ashtown Plate, which he won on the hitherto disappointing Mr. Porta, albeit he had all his work cut out to dispose of the "country" trained Homeland. Doubler, a speedy son of Bachelor's Craft, was served up a hot favourite for the Maiden Plate, and, heading Corfie a furlong out, he scored with plenty to spare.

Backers were not so fortunate over the Whitefields Plate, in which Flying Lill defeated some more fancied opponents, and incidentally registered her third consecutive success. Golden Duke was very unruly at the post, and in a breakaway galloped the full course, and this naturally took a lot out of him, despite which he ran very well, and accounted for everything except Flying Lill. An unfortunate mishap occurred in this race, the promising two-year-old, Golden Toy, the property of Mr. E. S. Dowling, breaking a leg, and he had to be destroyed. The colt's only previous appearance was when he made a successful début at the Phœnix Park July meeting, and not long since his owner declined a big sum for him. Owing to Eagle's Own whipping round at the start, the Greenmount Plate was reduced to the dimensions of a match, in which the smart, but none too lucky, Orby Lass gave Glossina 18lb. and a ready beating. Hector's Pride took second place below the distance, but failed to overhaul Patsy, who won by a length; two lengths between second and third. Glenhead was fourth, Hardicanute fifth, O'Malley Mor sixth, and Mountbellew next.

RACING IN PARIS.

PRIX DE L'ARC DE TRIOMPHE WON BY KSAR.

The Longchamps racecourse to-day, says a Reuter's telegram, dated Paris, Sunday, presented a scene of unusual brilliance, the enclosure being thronged with a society crowd. The Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe resulted as follows:—

PRIX DE L'ARC DE TRIOMPHE, £12,000. 1½ m.

M. E. Blanc's KSAR, 3, 8-9 ... G. Stern 1
M. M. Peronne's FLECHOIS, 3, 8-9 ... Bellhouse 2
Mr. J. R. Walker's SQUARE MEASURE, 6, 9-7 F. Bullock 3

Pari-mutuel betting—Stake 10 francs to win—21 francs Ksar, 15 francs Flechois, 33.50 francs Square Measure, 21.50 francs Blue Dun.

As des As and Torelore took the lead at the start, while Ksar was last to leave the post, several lengths behind. Pomme de Terre, one of the four English horses, which had been with the leading group, soon began to fall behind, while Blue Dun, increasing her lead, got well ahead, followed by Torelore, As des As, Tacite, and Square Measure. Down the slope Blue Dun added yet further to her advantage, but slowed down between the two bends, Ksar at the same time gaining ground. At the entrance to the straight Blue Dun, Torelore, and Ksar were together, but Ksar forged ahead, and won easily, while Flechois, coming up from behind, shot past the others and took second place. Square Measure, who ran excellently, was followed in the order named by Odol, Cid Campeador, and Blue Dun. Time—2 mins. 34 4-5 secs.

KEMPTON.

DUKE OF YORK STAKES.

ABBOT'S TRACE FAILS.

PARAGON'S HEAD VICTORY.

Quite a number of provincial sportsmen were to be met in the Kempton Paddock, many being present with a view to seeing something in the Duke of York Stakes calculated to enlighten the Cambridgeshire situation. It was early known that Tishy, the Cesarewitch favourite, had been given a good gallop at Newmarket, and both Day, the trainer, and Weston, her jockey, each of whom was present, expressed the utmost satisfaction with the filly.

I regret to state that Shatwell, the successful middle-weight jockey, is lying in a West End nursing home dangerously ill with stomach trouble. Shatwell, after riding at the last Newmarket Meeting, was unable to journey to Catterick Bridge to fulfil engagements there. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Such wonderful improvement has Abbot's Trace made since the spring that his defeat in the Duke of York Stakes was generally scouted at this later period of the season. Thoroughbreds are usually beginning to display their winter coats, but on Saturday the twelve runners in this event showed a bloom and polish more in keeping with the height of the season. Most of them were sweating, but that was only to be expected in the torrid heat. Coolest of all was undoubtedly Abbot's Trace. He is, indeed, now a fine type of the thoroughbred.

Just as in the Jubilee, Paragon settled down in front, and was not headed. Just for a stride or two the favourite looked like doing so, but the effort was too great. As more people were interested in the beaten horse than the winner, I had a chat with Jelliss, and he told me—"I could not have had better luck in the race, but I met a horse who on this course seems to run a few pounds better than anywhere else. I have no excuse to make, though when I got to Paragon's head I thought I should win, and on any other course I think I should have done so."

Paragon's victory was not a popular one, most people having been guided by Newmarket reports that he had not been doing much work. He, however, appeared to be fit enough, and ran like a fit horse, though, as Jelliss remarked, this is undoubtedly his favourite course. In the Cambridgeshire he will now have to carry 9st 7lb., and give 5lb. to Abbot's Trace in place of the weights of Saturday.

Lacrosse, who during the past few days has been much discussed in connection with the Cambridgeshire, went lame whilst at the post. Fortunately for those who had supported him, he had not come under the starter's orders, and was withdrawn.

Paragon took it up after going a quarter of a mile, attended by Statuary, Abbot's Trace, Franklin, Endor, Northern Light, Grandcourt, and Illuminator. Abbot's Trace became second in the straight, and took closer order a furlong further on, but Paragon held him at bay and won a good race by a head, one and a half lengths dividing second and third. Sorrel was fourth, Northern Light fifth, Franklin sixth, Goldendale seventh, Grandcourt eighth, Illuminator next, and Endor last. RUGBY GAMES.

HIGH SCORING BY LANSDOWNE.

Judging by Saturday's club results, it looks as if Lansdowne would make a bold bid for club championship this season. Following their heavy defeat of Wanderers on the previous Saturday, they trounced Monkstown to the tune of 49 points to nil. On Saturday they had the assistance of T. J. Kilgour, the Scottish wing three-quarter, and, with A. Aslett, a centre three-quarter who played in the English trial games, W. E. Crawford, Irish international full back, and W. Cunningham, Irish half-back, the back division is certainly a formidable one. The two Universities, however, have yet to put teams in the field, and Trinity, with many recruits from the schools, is certain to have a strong side when the practice game are completed. Bective Rangers had Wanderers as visitors at Donnybrook, where, after an even first half, the home club clearly asserted itself in the second, and won by 22 points to 8. Palmerston, a very deserving club, continues to do better than last season, and scored another victory at the hands of Blackrock College, who had a weak side out, while Old Wesley, making a first appearance against Clontarf, suffered defeat by 32 points to 8.

LANSDOWNE (49) v. MONKSTOWN (0).

Lansdowne were at full strength for their match with Monkstown at Lansdowne road on Saturday, and gained an overwhelming victory by 9 goals (1 penalty) and 2 tries (49 points) to nil. The visitors, on the other hand, had three changes from the side originally selected, while they started a man short. The weather was delightfully fine when, in the presence of a large gathering, the following teams lined out:—

Lansdowne—W. E. Crawford; T. J. Kilgour, A. Aslett, J. Bell, G. Larkin; W. Cunningham, C. Randell; N. Purcell, F. Dearden, L. Brennan, P. Whitty, W. Ludendorf, Pettigrew, H. Bell, Pemberton.

Monkstown—E. S. Mack; E. Crawford, D. Head, P. M. Goodbody, C. McCaldine, D. C. Pickeman, R. M. Young; R. M. Scott, J. A. Mather, G. Robinson, H. H. Read, G. Mahony, J. R. Ramsey, W. A. O'Brien, C. E. Fleury.

Referee—Dr. W. A. Solomons.

Monkstown started a man short, and for the opening ten minutes Mather was out of the pack playing as wing three-quarter. Lansdowne were the first to press, and, Cunningham putting his line in motion, J. Bell had a good run before passing to Aslett, who, however, was at once brought down by Pickeman. From the ensuing scrum Read, Scott, and Ramsey broke away, but Crawford pulled them up at the centre, and, with a fine kick, put Lansdowne attacking. Following some loose work near midfield, Monkstown were penalised, and Crawford, with a splendid kick, landed a goal. Led by Dearden and Purcell, the home forwards immediately resumed the attack, and, following a bout of passing, J. Bell made a fine opening for Larkin to score a try, to which Crawford added the extra points. Monkstown had a short attack in the play which followed. Pickeman got in a clever kick, and Goodbody, picking up, got clear away. Nearing Crawford he kicked high, but the Lansdowne custodian fielded smartly, and relieved to centre. Good footwork by Whitty and Dearden took play close to the Monkstown line, where Aslett, coming into possession, raced over for a try, which Crawford converted. Goodbody and Read were prominent for Monkstown from the kick out, and from a free Pickeman made a great effort to place a goal, but sent short. Hard though they tried, the visitors could not maintain the pressure, and a lengthy kick by Crawford and a clever run by Kilgom brought Lansdowne to the visitors' quarter flag. Here Cunningham got possession, and passing between himself, Purcell, and J. Bell terminated in the latter registering a try, and once again Crawford converted. Lansdowne continued the pressure, and Dearden looked all over a scorer when he lost the ball. Coming towards the interval Cunningham sent out a long pass to Aslett, who transferred to Kilgour, and the latter, putting in a splendid swerving run, beat the opposition, and scored a brilliant try, which this time Crawford failed to convert.

Thus Lansdowne crossed over with a lead of 21 points, and the second period proved even more one-sided. Though Monkstown opened with an attack, it was only temporary. Kilgour by a short run and kick changed matters to the visitors' side of centre, and, after Dearden and H. Bell had worked up to the line, the latter worried over for a try, which Crawford goaled. Lansdowne continued to act on the aggressive, and Cunningham, receiving from Randel, put in a very tricky run. He was staggered by Goodbody, but managed to regain himself, and score a try, for Crawford to once more add the extra points. Kilgour was to the fore in the play which followed. Fielding a high kick from Mack, he ran strongly before cross-kicking to J. Bell. The latter was at once tackled by Pickeman, but the next minute Dearden had dribbled over for a try, which Crawford converted. Still Lansdowne maintained the pressure, and, after a clever run by Kilgour, Aslett made a great effort to drop a goal, and just missed by inches. A score was only delayed a minute, however, and, following a pretty passing bout between Larkin, J. Bell, and Aslett, the last-named raced over for a try, and Crawford goaled. The next item of note was a great run by Kilgour, and he was only shoved into touch close to the line. From the ensuing throw out, however, Dearden got across, but this time Crawford failed. A further score came immediately afterwards when Aslett, after a good run, got over, and Crawford added his ninth goal.

The one-sided nature of the match renders lengthy criticism unnecessary. From start to finish, and in every department of the game, Monkstown were quite outplayed, and on not more than two occasions were they any way close to the home line. T. J. Kilgour, the Scottish international three-quarter, made his first appearance for the home club, and, playing on the wing with Aslett as centre, gave a brilliant display. A very strong runner, Kilgour is a very hard man to bring down, and his try in the opening half was the result of a brilliant individual performance. Aslett also played finely, taking and giving his passes without fault and running strongly, while his three scores were all good efforts. J. Bell and Larkin, on the other wing, were also in fine form, and, altogether, the Lansdowne quartette promise to be one of the best in Leinster this season. Cunningham, at half, was in his best form, and he was well served by Randell at the base of the scrum. A good pack of forwards were best represented by Dearden, H. Bell, Ludendorf, and Whitty. Crawford got practically nothing to do, but, as can be gauged from the number of goals, his kicking was superb. The most prominent players for Monkstown were:—P. M. Goodbody, McCaldin, and Pickeman (backs) and Read, Mather, Scott, and Ramsey (forwards) Result:—

Lansdowne—9 goals (penalty) and 2 tries (49 points).
Monkstown—Nil.

BECTIVE RANGERS (22) v. WANDERERS (8)

It was very close and heavy at Donnybrook on Saturday, and the attendance was only fair. After a very even first half Bective had all the better of the concluding period, winning by 3 goals (1 penalty) and 3 tries to a goal and a try. Teams:—

Bective Rangers.—J. Ballagh; A. Atkins, C. Culhane, J. Callanan, J. Joyce; P. Conmee, J. Clarke, R. Collopy; W. Collopy, J. D. Egan, L. Egan, C. Fegan, R. Flood, R. Walker, A. Wade.

Wanderers—V. Browne; N. D. Tipping, Rev. N. Hamilton, Rev. R. Watson, T. G. Wallis; D. Saunderson, Jos. Bell; H. R. Barton, A. J. England, S. S. Evans, W. H. Kitton, A. Larmour, H. O'Neill, N. Potterton, F. C. Tucker.

Referee—Mr. C. P. Stuart.

Though the conditions were most unfootball-like, the match was very fast, open, and interesting from start to finish, and Wanderers scarcely deserved to be beaten by a margin of 14 points. They gave a much better display than the previous Saturday against Lansdowne, and had somewhat the better of the first half, their forwards getting the ball better than the opposing eight, and though Bective gained a surprise try in the first minute of the game, they drew, and were unlucky not to lead, at the interval. Bective opened out the game in fine style in the concluding half, the forwards throwing the ball about at times in bewildering fashion, and frequently joining in with the backs in passing movements. Wanderers, despite the reverse, showed distinct possibilities, and with a few more matches should be quite a useful side.

The start was sensational, as from the very first scrum formed Clarke set the home side going, and after Conmee, Egan, Fegan, and Callanan had handled, Joyce raced over, R. Collopy failing to convert. Wanderers' backs next got going, and Tipping was brought down by Callanan when looking dangerous. Wallis next had an unsuccessful shot at goal, and also had a fine run, being well taken down by Ballagh. After Culhane had brought play inside the Wanderers' 25 with a great kick, Joyce got away only to be brought down by Browne. Wanderers next took up the running, and Saunderson let Watson away to cut through cleverly, and, drawing Ballagh, he sent a well-timed pass to Wallis, who dashed over for a pretty try, but his kick just failed. Soon after Wallis had another fine run, but again found Ballagh a stumbling block. A few minutes before the interval fine passing by Culhane, J. Egan, and W. Collopy saw the latter cross the line, but he lost the ball and a certain try, and half-time saw the teams level with 3 points each.

Bective again got going first, and good work by the Collopys brought play near the visitors' line, where Atkins slipped over for a soft try, which R. Collopy failed to improve. Soon after Wanderers were penalised for "feet up," and Conmee dropped a fine goal from quite 40 yards out. Saunderson set the visitors' backs going, but Watson's pass to Wallis went astray, and Bective were again pressing, when Walker dribbled up to the line, where R. Collopy scored, and Conmee added the extra points. After this the Wanderers' forwards brought play to half-way, where Conmee pulled them up, but being hampered his kick fell short, and Wallis, dashing up, fielded smartly, and raced away from nearly half-way to score a brilliant try, and he also converted. Soon after Browne was lucky to save from a Bective forward rush, but from the next scrum Clarke gave to Conmee, for the out-half to swerve past several opponents to cross for a grand try, and he also landed a goal. From the kick-off J. Egan fielded, and gave to Callanan, who kicked high, and the ball hopping awkwardly for Browne, L. Egan dribbled over, but Conmee failed with the kick.

Though not a great match, it was made very interesting by the open tactics of the home team, for whom Ballagh was very good at full, fielding and kicking well, while his tackling was really excellent. Culhane seemed to be coming back to his old form, and was the best of the line, and Conmee gave a very good display at outhalf, his try being an excellent effort, and he was well served by Clarke at the base of the scrum. J. D. Egan was nearly the pick of the forwards, and initiated several passing movements, while the two Collopys, Wade, and Walker also did well. For Wanderers, Browne only made one mistake, and over this he was a bit unlucky. The experiment of playing Wallis on the left wing proved quite a success, and Watson combined well with him. Saunderson went down to the rushes pluckily, and got the ball away smartly, but Bell was too prone to work the blind side. The forwards were best represented by Kitton, Potterton, O'Neill, and Barton. Result:—

Bective Rangers—3 goals (1 penalty), 3 tries (22 pts.)
Wanderers—1 goal 1 try (8 pts.).

PALMERSTON (10) v. BLACKROCK COLL. (6).

Palmerston registered another win on Saturday, when, at Milltown, they defeated Blackrock College by 2 goals to 2 tries. The home side were at full strength, except that Lochtie replaced Wynne in the pack; but Blackrock had a scratch side, Browne, Bermingham, J. Kenny, and Walsh being absent. Teams:—

Palmerston—R. R. Shortt; C. Saville, F. E. Heron, J. Smith, E. V. Kirwan; R. M'Kimmon, R. Stephens; W. J. Hazlett, T. L. Jolley, J. E. Kerr, S. Kirwan, J. Kitching, G. Quirke, L. Simon, J. Lochtie.

Blackrock College—B. Williams; P. V. Breen, M. Matthews, P. Winters, J. O'Donnell; B. Brennan, B. Coughlan; C. M'Mahon, J. Broderick, M. Costelloe, E. Kearney, Egan, Cleary, M. Cogan, F. Lynch.

Referee—Mr. H. Hill.

The ground was very grassy, and although the start was delayed half an hour to enable the visitors to raise a team they took the field with eleven men, were still one short at the interval, and only had a complete side in the second half. Still they managed to stall off the Palmerston attack for quite a time, and it was towards the end of the first half that from a loose rush Hazlett scored for Palmerston under the bar, and Kerr had no difficulty in converting. Blackrock now roused up, and a cross-kick by O'Donnell being fumbled by Saville, Matthews dashed over for a try far out, which O'Donnell failed to improve on, and at the interval the home side led by 2 points.

In the second half Palmerston attacked strongly for a time, and Saville had hard luck in not scoring. Then Broderick led a forward rush, and the ball going into touch near the pavilion corner, Breen got over for the throw-in, but O'Donnell's kick was charged down. O'Donnell next sent Matthews away on the right touch line, and the latter got over at the corner, but the scorer collided with the corner flag and the try was disallowed. Immediately Palmerston rushed down, and the Blackrock full blundering, E. V. Kirwan got over, for Heron to convert from a difficult angle.

The football was poor and scrambling, and mainly of the big kick and follow up order. Palmerston deserved their win, for they played much the better game, though out-weighted in the scrums. Shortt at back kicked and found touch well; Stephens was clever at the base of the scrum; Saville and E. V. Kirwan were good in the three-quarter line, and S. Kirwan, Kerr, Quirk, and Kitching the best of the forwards.

For Blackrock, Williams at full was weak; O'Donnell was a tower of strength in the three-quarter line, while Breen and Matthews were also good; Brennan worked the scrum well, and Broderick, Cogan, Costelloe, and Lynch were the pick of the pack. Result:—

Palmerston—2 goals (10 points).
Blackrock College—2 tries (6 points).

CLONTARF (32) v. OLD WESLEY (8).

Old Wesley made their first appearance of the season at Castle avenue on Saturday, and provided Clontarf with an easy win by 4 goals and 4 tries to a goal and a try. Teams:—

Clontarf—C. h. Jackson; W. L. Freeman, H. S. Cormac, A. E. Dallas, J. Miller; J. Hopkins, N. H. Cooke; J. "Rush," J. Quail, J. G. Cooke, W. S. Corrigan, J. S. Lewis, J. Brady, J. Quinn, V. Bradley.

Old Wesley—W. B. O'Sullivan; J. R. Lawson, S. Evans, V. E. Johnson, K. M. Harvey; E. W. Massey, E. Holland; E. R. Barrett, D. Gray, A. J. Walkey, E. G. Cullen, G. A. Saunders, G. Clegg, T. B. Williamson, E. McAlpine.

Referee—Mr. P. Sythes.

Wesley began promisingly, their forwards getting possession form the first few scrums, and after one good movement by their backs had ended in Lawson being held up, Massey opened out again, and Holland and Evans handling, Lawson raced over for the opening score, which, however, was not converted. Wesley were pressing again when O'Sullivan, in endeavouring to drop a goal, miskicked, and the ball went to Freeman, who gathered, and running from his own 25, left the opposition standing to score a fine try between the posts, and Dallas gave Clontarf the lead by converting. Shortly afterwards, as a result of a loose rush by the home forwards, Lewis scored the second try, and Dallas was again successful with the kick. Wesley then had a spell on the offensive, and Holland put in a good run before transferring to Harvey, who was pulled down just on the line, and a free to Clontarf eased the pressure. A bad misfield by the visitors' full let Cormac away, but he was brought down from behind when looking dangerous. Clontarf were the aggressors for the remainder of this half, and Freeman put them further ahead by scoring a try at the corner following a cross-kick by Cormac, and in a forward rush Corrigan crossed the visitors' line for the fourth time.

Passing by the Wesley backs, followed by good forward works, carried play at once to the home line, on restarting, and from a scrum Holland put in a fine run before giving Harvey a chance to score, but the wingman failed to hold his pass. By stages Clontarf got into their opponents' territory, and after one or two movements by their backs had been frustrated, Cooke got them going again, and Hopkins, giving to Cormac, the latter ran well before sending Dallas over for a try, which Cormac converted. Dallas and Cormac very prominent in the subsequent play, and the former, with a nicely judged kick, gave Miller the opportunity to add another try to the lead, and Dallas placed a fine goal. A fine solo dribble by Saunders from beyond half-way was the means of putting Wesley on the offensive, and, after kicking the ball over the line, he was just beaten by Cormac in the race for the touch. Play remained inside the home 25 for some time, but Wesley failed to penetrate the defence, and, on the ball being transferred to the opposite end, Dallas and N. Cooke got over for further tries for Clontarf, both attempts at goal failing. Just on time Clegg and Cullen were prominent in a rush by the Wesley forwards, which resulted in the former scoring a try, and Evans converted.

Taking into consideration the summer-like conditions which prevailed, the pace maintained throughout two "forties" was remarkable so early in the season, and, although the score would suggest a very one-sided game, this was hardly the case, as Wesley had quite a good share of the game from a territorial standpoint, and kept going keenly to the end. Clontarf were, however, much more dangerous near the line, and hardly missed an opportunity of scoring. In this they were helped to a great extent by the ineffective tackling methods of some of the visitors. It was at three-quarter that Clontarf were conspicuously superior to their opponents, the home line overshadowing the Wesley quartette. The Wesley pack did quite well and had little the worst of the argument. Jackson was sound at full, and in a very useful three-quarter line Dallas was, perhaps, slightly in front of Cormac and Freeman. Cooke and Hopkins performed well at half, and Corrigan, J. Cooke, Lewis, and Brady were about the best of the forwards. For Wesley O'Sullivan did not make a very safe full, and Lawson and Evans were about the pick of a moderate third line. Holland and Massey, at half, were easily the pick of the backs, and got through a large amount of work both in attack and defence. The most prominent forwards were Gray, Walkey, Saunders, and Cullen. Result:—

Clontarf—4 goals 4 tries (32 points).
Old Wesley—1 goal 1 try (8 points).

WIN FOR QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY, BELFAST.

Although Armagh were out-played by Queen's University in the Senior League match in Belfast on Saturday, they put up a splendid fight. The students had much more of the game in the first half and scored twice per Anderson and Munn. Three minutes from the resumption of the second half, Anderson again got over from a great forward rush, and Smyth also scored soon afterwards. A. R. Wheeler kicked four goals, one being from a penalty. Result:—

Queen's University—21 points.
Armagh—Nil.

BOHEMIANS BEATEN AT BELFAST.

Bohemians on Saturday returned the visit of the Falls and District League team to Dalymount Park earlier in the season, but met with an unexpected reverse, the Belfast men winning by the odd goal of three. The pitch at Shane's Park did not quite suit the style of the visitors, whose forwards failed to control the ball as well as usual, but it was a hard-fought game, with victory going the way of the more deserving side. Each team scored once in the first half, Davey getting through for Falls, and Haire equalising, and the only score after the interval was registered by Davey.

Of the local League games the most interesting was that played at St. James's Park, in the League of Ireland. Here the home side defeated Jacobs by 4-2, and incidentally maintained their unbeaten record. By a similar margin Shelbourne beat Y.M.C.A. at Claremont road; and the outcome of the match at Richmond road was a distribution of the points between Frankfort and Olympia, who each scored twice. While on a voyage from Glasgow to Dublin yesterday the ss. Rowan was sunk off the Scottish coast in a fog. Twenty-three lives are believed to have been lost.—(P. 5.)

The dispute between the Dublin Technical Education Committee and the Technical Teachers' Association has come to a head, and to-day pickets are to be posted outside schools in the city.—(P. 6.)

Anti-"profiteering" committees are being formed throughout the country to reduce the prices of food and other commodities.—(P. 5.)

A Derry farmer named Buchanan was shot dead on the roadside near his house on Saturday night. No arrests were made.—(P. 6.)

The King referred to the unemployment problem on Saturday when he opened the extension of the Royal Exchange at Manchester.—(P. 6.)

Speaking at a Labour meeting in Manchester on Saturday, Mr. Clynes defended Ireland's claim to the right to break away from the British Empire.—(P. 6.)

At Phœnix Park Races on Saturday the La Touche Plate was won by Mr. H. McAlinden's Patsy.—(P. 3.)

Labour's Blindness.

Two important references to the unemployment problem were made at Manchester on Saturday. One was made by the King in opening an extension of the Royal Exchange, the other by Mr. J. R. Clynes, leader of the Parliamentary Labour Party. The King appealed to "all classes of the community" to work together in order to restore the commercial and productive activity of the nation, and expressed his sincere hope that the efforts of his Ministers to alleviate unemployment, now and in the future, might be crowned with success. Mr. Clynes's speech, on the other hand, was most unfortunate. Where the King was helpful, the Labour leader was the reverse, and the whole tone of his speech provides a mournful commentary on Labour's attitude towards the nation's plight. He announced calmly that at the recent conference with the Prime Minister the Labour leaders had refused point-blank to co-operate with the Government, the employers, and the bankers, in an effort to improve the country's position. The excuse which Mr. Clynes put forward is typical of the Labour mind in its official manifestations. Labour's remedy for the unemployment evil has been formulated already; Mr. Clynes embodied it in a bill which he introduced in the House of Commons during the past session. The Labour leaders are ready to help in the putting of this plan into operation; but, said Mr. Clynes, "we have resolved unanimously not to play anybody's game of further delay, and not to discuss with anybody the schemes of other people. . . . The hand of Labour must be free, when the Government's proposals come before Parliament, to examine and amend them, and resist them if we do not think them good enough."

Class must come before country. Such is Mr. Clynes's answer to the King's appeal to the whole community. Labour is playing a political game while a million and a half of its supporters are trudging hungry through the streets. Its amour propre is offended because Parliament did not see fit to accept its original proposals, and its attitude now is that of the sulky apprentice, who, when his work is criticised by his overseer, throws down his tools and says, "Do it yourself." The unemployment problem is far too grave for such childish behaviour. Mr. Clynes's argument that the Labour Party must have a free hand in Parliament is absurd. The nation is threatened, just as it was threatened seven years ago; but this time the enemy is even stronger and more implacable than the Germans. Therefore, the nation, and not any party or group of parties, must prepare to defend itself. Mr. Lloyd George, for better or for worse, has outlined a plan for the relief and prevention of unemployment which has won the support of the whole Cabinet. To its success the assistance of organised Labour is essential, for no revival of trade will be possible unless, and until, the workers of the country agree to call a truce with their employers, and, for a certain period at any rate, to put new life into their tasks. That Mr. Clynes should regard the Government's plan just as it would regard any ordinary political bill—as something to be attacked in the House of Commons—is deplorable. If Labour has any real desire to prove its capacity for government, an excellent chance is within its grasp.

The bad impression which has been made by Mr. Clynes's speech will be relieved, in some degree, by the trade returns which we print to-day. The month of September shows quite a remarkable improvement. Exports have increased, imports have fallen, and the balance of trade has taken a welcome turn for the better. In August our total exports amounted to £51,346,307; the September figure is £55,247,578. Thus there has been an increase of nearly £4,000,000. Imports in September cost nearly £1,500,000 less than they cost in August, with the result that the total turnover in our favour comes to almost £5,500,000. All the improvement in export values is derived from manufactured goods. There have been satisfactory increases in the exports of iron, steel, cotton, earthenware, glass, chemicals, and dyes, while exported coal, although of much greater bulk, fetched nearly £500,000 less than the coal which went abroad in August. On the whole, the trade returns shed a gleam of hope, however faint, on a very gloomy outlook. Trade cannot be revived, however, if costs are not lowered, and, no matter how many millions are granted by Parliament for the relief of distress, this vital fact will remain. If the prices of British goods could be reduced by ten, or even five, per cent. to-morrow, orders would begin immediately to flow in from abroad. Inflation will not lower prices; it is bound to raise them. "Doles," ultimately, must have the same effect. The only way has been indicated a thousand times. Taxes, wages, and profits—these three must be reduced, and the greatest of these is wages.

China and Japan.

If there is any truth in the aphorism that a soft answer turneth away wrath, it is equally true that among nations the soft proposal exciteth a bellicose reply. The latest example of the truth of this dictum is provided in the Chinese reply to the Japanese offer to vacate the Shantung Peninsula. The offer was unexpected, since the belief prevailed in many quarters that Japan's attitude with regard to the peninsula was, in effect, "J'y suis, j'y reste." Certainly China was in no position to evict her, and no other nation showed any disturbing signs of taking up the cudgels on China's behalf. Moreover, the claim of the Chinese Government to a return of the territory, though substantially just, is not so unquestionable as the Chinese attitude would seem to indicate. The Shantung Peninsula had been ceded voluntarily by China to Germany. It was wrested from Germany by Japan in the course of a war in which China joined the Allies only after it became clear that they were the winning side. The Chinese claim that their declaration of war on Germany cancelled the lease. The Japanese claim—logically enough—that they had captured the territory in dispute, and with it whatever rights Germany had in it, long before China made up her mind to join the Allied nations as a belligerent. Japan's decision to restore the Shantung territory was actuated by broad questions of policy, and not by the merits of the Chinese claim. In a very short time the Washington Conference will meet—an effort by all interested parties to avert all possible occasions for the war towards which Japan and the United States seemed to be rapidly hurrying. The conference, it is true, concerns disarmament, but it has been realised on all sides that there can be no disarmament unless the more aggravated subjects of dispute are first settled. It was in order to placate American feeling and to prove their own sincerity that the Japanese undertook at this moment to offer to surrender Shantung on certain conditions. China haughtily refuses the conditions, believing, perhaps, that Washington will support her attitude at the conference. The view would seem to be short-sighted. When nations are trying to improve their mutual relations by mutual concessions and agreements the voice of the intransigeant—ever a trouble-maker—gets scant encouragement.

The Loss of the Rowan.

Two cities—Glasgow and Dublin—will mourn the loss of the Laird Line's steamer Rowan. There have been more costly calamities of the sea—to-day is the third anniversary of the sinking of the Leinster—but the end of the Rowan was peculiarly tragic. In the fatal fog she received her death-blow from a ship which, after the first collision with the West Coomak, was hurrying to the work of rescue. The dangers of Corsewall Point, which juts into the narrow sea between Scotland and the North of Ireland, are known to all mariners. Here, at midnight on Saturday, the Rowan was struck by an American ship. She sent out the wireless signal of distress, which was answered swiftly by the Clan Malcolm and the destroyer Wrestler. The Clan Malcolm, speeding through fog and darkness, struck the Rowan amidships and sank her almost immediately. The latest reports say that twenty-three lives have been lost, including some of the crew and, it would seem, a considerable number of the members of a negro orchestra which was to have fulfilled an engagement to-day in Dublin. Unhappily, the name of Captain Brown, the master of the Rowan, does not appear in the list of survivors. He was a native of Glasgow, but his death—if he is, indeed, dead—will be regretted sincerely in the port of Dublin. None who knew him will need to be told that, in the last, stern ordeal, he maintained the highest traditions of British seamanship. The reports of survivors indicate that in the fifteen minutes which passed between the first and second collisions all possible measures were taken to launch the boats and save the lives of passengers and crew. The sudden stroke of doom found Captain Brown at his post. Dublin will offer its heartfelt sympathy to all who have been bereaved and stricken by this lamentable accident.

A League of Ypres.

There must be many hundreds of Service men and ex-Service men in Ireland who belong to the companionship of the Ypres Salient. It is, indeed, a great companionship, since it includes the 250,000 men who died in the Salient for the freedom of the British seas. In a letter which we print to-day Earl French announces the formation of a League which will maintain the proud bond between the survivors and the dead. Its membership is open to all who served in the Salient. In the City of Ypres itself a Roll of Honour—such as the Irish War Memorial contemplates—will be preserved. The sites of the great battles will be marked. If sufficient support is forthcoming, a visible monument will be erected among the ruins on behalf of the League. Lord French suggests a hostelry at which lodging would be provided for pilgrim ex-soldiers, richer in memory than in purse. We hope that every Irishman who helped to defend the Salient will join the League and will promote its plans to the best of his power. His scroll of membership may become, in Ireland's happier days, a well-prized legacy to his children. "Here was one," his sons and grandsons will say, "who fought at Ypres, who trod the Menin road, who was equal to the supreme test of manhood in the Great War."

The compensation awarded to the Earl of Bandon for the destruction of Castle Bernard and its contents recalls that many heirlooms were lost that cannot be replaced. One of the pictures was a magnificent portrait of Judge Bernard, a lawyer and M.P., who played a very important part in legal and political affairs in a critical period of Irish history.

The Marquis of Bute has arrived in England from Spain, where he spent the summer. The Earl and Countess of Portarlington have returned to London from the country. The Duke of Westminster left London on Saturday for France. Viscount Swansea has returned to London for the autumn. Lord and Lady Ardee will shortly leave Scotland for a visit to Ireland.

The death is announced of Mrs. Page Croft, of Fanham's Hall, Herts. She was the widow of Mr. Richard Benyon Croft, a grandson of Sir Richard Croft, sixth baronet, of Croft, an estate held uninterruptedly by his ancestors from Doomsday Book times. Mr. Croft died in 1912, and of their two sons, the elder, Colonel H. Page Croft, is married to the only daughter of Mr. Waithman and the late Lady Philippa Waithman, of Merlin Park, Galway, and the younger is the well-known member of Parliament, General H. Page Croft.

Field-Marshal Earl Haig is receiving gratifying support in his efforts to secure success for "Flanders' Poppy Day" (November 11th), which he is organising in aid of ex-Service men. In the United States, as well as throughout the British Empire, the Flanders' poppy will be worn on that date, in remembrance of those who rest in Flanders' plains, where the poppies bloom above their graves.

Among the Irish visitors at the ball given last week in Claridge's Hotel, London, by the directors, were—The Earl of Portarlington, Priscilla Countess Annesley, Captain Lord Claud Hamilton, Lord Fermoy, Lady Joan Mulholland, Lord Ashley, Hon. Mrs. Arthur Crichton, and Hon. Evelyn Fitzgerald. Other well-known people there included the Lord Chancellor of England and Lady Birkenhead, the Duke and Duchess of Rutland, Mr. and Lady Diana Duff-Cooper, Lord Wimborne, Lord Ednam, the Countess of Wilton, Hon. Percy Thellusson, and Sir Victor Warrender.

Three well-known names appear in the Freshmen's list for the coming October term at Oxford. They include the Earl of Longford, who succeeded to the title on his father's death at the Dardanelles; Mr. Anthony Asquith, son of Mr. Asquith, and Mr. Gilbert Simon, son of Sir John Simon.

At St. Margaret's, Westminster, on the 27th of this month, the wedding of Miss Hilda de Bunsen, eldest daughter of Sir Maurice and Lady de Bunsen, to Captain Guy Yerburgh, of the Irish Guards, will take place. There will be twelve bridesmaids, with pages in attendance on the bride.

Lady Macready, having left Salisbury, begs that all correspondence shall be forwarded to Empress Club, Dover street, Piccadilly, until further notice.

THREE YEARS AGO TO-DAY.

LOSS OF THE LEINSTER.

By a strange and painful coincidence the loss of the Rowan, a Dublin-bound passenger steamer, has occurred on the eve of the anniversary of the most appalling shipping disaster in the annals of the port of Dublin—the sinking of the Royal Mail steamer Leinster by a German submarine when on her voyage from Kingstown to Holyhead on the morning of October 10, 1918.

There were on board the Leinster when she left Kingstown 780 persons, of whom about 70 were members of the crew. Of these, 193 were rescued. The number of lives lost was 587—the largest loss of life in the case of a single vessel during the war, with the exception of the Lusitania.

Captain Birch, the master of the Leinster, was last seen alive in the water clinging to an upturned boat, and his body was among those recovered from the sea next day. The chief officer, Mr. Crangle, though injured in the legs as a result of the explosion, was saved, as was also the chief steward, Mr. Lewis, who lost two brothers and a cousin in the disaster.

This disaster was Dublin's most intimate experience of German "frightfulness," and many residents in the city and townships were among the victims. It was a crime which evoked a feeling of profound horror and indignation throughout the civilised world.

The accounts of the dreadful affair, though somewhat conflicting in detail, are in agreement that two torpedoes were fired at the mail boat, and that, had the second not been discharged, the loss of life would not have been so heavy. When the first torpedo struck the mail boat, which was travelling without a naval escort, the shock felt on board was only slight, but the damage was serious, for the ship immediately began to settle down by the head.

The first torpedo struck the portion of the ship in which the G.P.O. staff was engaged in sorting the mails, under the direction of Mr. R. Patterson, superintendent. All these officials, 22 in number, with the sole exception of Mr. J. J. Higgins, lost their lives—in fact, they never reached the deck, and were probably drowned or killed in the flooded cabin where they had been working.

Several passengers who were on deck saw the first torpedo rushing towards the vessel, and when it struck many of them ran to help to lower the boats. They were working at the boats, while others were placing lifebelts on themselves, when a second torpedo struck the Leinster amidships with a terrific explosion and threw her right over on her beam ends.

People who had taken their places in the boats were thrown out of them, while two of the boats capsized. Only one boat actually got clear of the ship. Passengers, deck furniture, and all sorts of articles were rolling in a confused heap into the sea. The majority of the passengers sank, and when they came to the surface again the Leinster had disappeared. All these incidents occurred within a space variously estimated at from two to five minutes.

In the water a mass of people struggled desperately for life. Soon scores of bodies were floating about, still in lifebelts. When the struggling passengers who were clinging to the rafts and wreckage had reached the point of despair assistance arrived in the form of naval vessels. The dead and the living were brought into Kingstown, and the survivors, many of whom had sustained broken limbs and other injuries, were placed in the Dublin hospitals. There were British, American, and Australian sailors and soldiers among the passengers, and many acts of heroism and self-sacrifice are told of the awful tragedy.

RIOT OF FLOWERS.

AUTUMN CHARMS OF GLASNEVIN.

(BY C. H. B.)

Anyone who would take the trouble to visit the Royal Botanical Gardens at Glasnevin on an average of once a fortnight would, in the course of a year, have unfolded to his intelligent gaze the flora of the world.

He would not see, and would not have time to see, every plant; but he would see every kind of plant, tree, and shrub, and would see them as well grown as, outside their native habitat, it is possible to grow them. This is only a roundabout way of saying that, with the exception of Kew, there is not a botanical garden in Europe or the United States to touch Glasnevin. Kew surpasses it, but only in size. Each has floral treasures that the other lacks, and the process of exchange is not one-sided.

At this very moment there is in bloom on the rock garden an anemone (A. obtusiloba patula) that was brought back from Burmah or Kachin, or some other such remote spot, by an Irish lady. She offered it, along with some other plants, to Kew, which refused to look at them. Being Irish, and therefore not easily squelched, she brought them to Glasnevin, where it was found that her little consignment included a new anemone, two new orchids, and other rarities.

I have sometimes wondered, as I wandered through the lovely Garden at Glasnevin, with no other human soul in sight to dispute my sovereignty, what a Greek of Pericles's time or a Roman of the Augustan age, or an Italian of the Medici period would have given for the opportunity that is lying in the lap of every man and woman in Dublin at no greater cost than a twopenny car ride. And how few does Dublin think of Glasnevin? So far as I can gather, the better educated occasionally remember it as the place where Grandpa proposed to Grandma. For the proletariat it is a good place to take children [illegible] more natural part.

If any on reading these lines should have remorse of conscience and resolve hereafter to give the Botanical Gardens an established place in their closely-ordered social life, let them go now. True, the seasons have got a bit mixed, summer, and even fragments of spring, having trespassed into the lap of autumn. But the October glories are there. The summer splendours are secondary. Chief among the latter are the roses, of which a bed of splendid golden yellow, called, I think, "Christine," and the magnificent scarlet "Triumph" caught my wandering eye. The Crinums have also come out in their glory, and are still making a brave show in their bed against the cool conservatory. Next to them is a handsome clump of Nerine Bowdeni, that showy hardy Nerine in cultivation and the giant of its race, whose lesser brethren are making a great display in the show greenhouse. This is a surprising garden plant, and so is the beautiful European Colchicum speciosum album, which can be spotted here and there on the lawns. Nor must one forget to mention the scarlet Gerbera Jamesoni—the original plant, by the way, that Jameson brought back with him after the Jameson Raid, a pretty little shrubby potentilla (in the rock garden) and the beautiful blue-flowered clover from India, Parochytus communis, the cheeriest little autumn crocuses and that most perfect of all nature's little gentlemen, Cyclamen Neapolitanum.

But it is to see the real autumn flowers and autumn tints that the [illegible]-minded are urged to go. The trees here do not assume to take on the gorgeous tints that they assume in colder climates, but the cut-leaved maples are giving scarlet and the spindle trees, varying from dull red to bright magenta, are wonderfully vivid. The eye quickly passes from them to the hardy borders, where the golds and blues, oranges and purples, of Flora's winter costume are in riot. It is par excellence the season of the Compositæ. Japanese anemones—never have I seen them finer—and golden and red, Gentians and Salvias, make a gallant bid for our notice, but they have not much chance against the Erigerons and Heleniums. Cone flowers and Cosmos, Gaillardias and Rudbeckias, Pyrethrum uliginosum, latest bloomer of all, and Chrysanthemums, and—above all and overtopping all—the Michaelmas Daisies. The Michaelmas Daisy is more than an autumn flower: it makes autumn as surely as the crimson leaves of the Virginia creeper, the hardy posy berries, the blackberry and the robin's re-awakened melody.

This year the Asters at Glasnevin lost something in breadth and stature owing to the drought that came along in their growing season. But they have made up for it in depth of colour and number of flowers. Among them are old favourites—the tiny but lovely "Freedom," the graceful "Edith Gibbs," and the Amellus varieties, Aldenham and Charles Davies. Two new-comers to-day have the honour—"Mlle. Gauguin" and "Beauty of Rontsdorf." No doubt, there are others to be seen in the Garden; nor have I mentioned a twelfth part of what I have been able to see. [illegible] the loveliest jewel in Dublin's slightly dingy crown be burnished with praise.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—Secondary depressions moving N. or N.E. from the Atlantic are likely to cause further rain in the W. and N. of the British Isles, but the E. and S.E. are likely to remain at present under the influence of the Continental anti-cyclone with a continuance of fair, warm weather.

Ireland.—Wind mainly between E. and S., freshening later; cloudy or dull; some rain; visibility indifferent in places; fair to fine further; rather high temperature.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

The Prime Minister, with several other members of the Cabinet, has been out of town for the week-end, but he is due at Downing street to-morrow morning, when it is expected that he will receive one of the Sinn Fein delegates, in order that there may be a preliminary, but informal, conversation as to the conference arrangements. The actual time for the meeting of the conference has not yet been settled, but it is thought that it will meet at half-past 11, or noon, at the Prime Minister's house in Downing street.

In official circles here it is said that the Government's idea of the conference will be to leave the business at its sittings to sort itself out. It is considered that it will be almost impossible to arrange a definite programme, and it is rather thought that the gathering may soon develop into a series of conferences which, though breaking down occasionally, must be expected to preserve a general form of continuity.

A HAPPY AUGURY.

A rather curious situation attended the arrival of the Sinn Fein delegates yesterday; for only half-an-hour before the time fixed for the arrival of the party the King and Queen arrived from Manchester on their way to Buckingham Palace. They had an enthusiastic reception from the crowds lining the route, Irish joining English in the cheering and demonstrations of welcome. When the delegates' train arrived one carriage had a label announcing that it was reserved for Mr. Erskine Childers's party. The railway company had made all the necessary arrangements for the comfort of the delegates. A barrier had been erected, and outside stood a line of young Irishmen who, with linked arms, kept back the enthusiastic crowd.

Mr. A. Griffith was the first to alight from the train, and he was immediately recognised, unlike the other delegates. There was a great scene of enthusiasm while a flashlight photograph was taken of the proceedings. Then a procession was formed and turned out into Euston road. By degrees the motor cars left the main part of the procession behind, and proceeded to Chelsea to the house in Hans place, where all the delegates alighted. The other house is not far distant, being in Cadogan Gardens. A police guard is to be on duty at each house to see that the delegates are not molested in any way. The delegates seemed to be well satisfied with their quarters, and it is said that they intend to live in them very quietly and will accept virtually no English hospitality.

"SUCCESS AND FINALITY."

The Observer, in a leading article on the forthcoming conference, says that those who may fear for it the fate of its predecessors must remind themselves of the very different setting in which it approaches its labours. "Neither in 1910 nor in 1914 was the political atmosphere comparable to that which prevails to-day. Never before have traditions of feud stood so clearly exposed in their relationship to permanent realities. English statesmanship has rarely found itself so untrammelled by anything outside its own fundamental principles of national safety. Ireland has not for many years had such occasion to appreciate the respective meanings of peace and war. The overwhelming wish of both peoples, we believe, is for success and finality in the task which the conference approaches."

Mr. Harold Begbie, in the Sunday Pictorial, makes a suggestion concerning the Irish situation which has excited much comment to-day. He points out that Wales has its own Prince. "The creation of the title Prince of Wales was only a symbol, but that symbol brought about peace after years of striving. Can not we offer some such symbol to Ireland? A Prince of Ireland would surely appeal to the warm hearts of the Irish people, and cement the at present discordant elements of that unhappy country. I would suggest that the people of England petition that admirable and clear-headed young Prince, the Duke of York, to go to Ireland as their representative, and there offer himself to the Irish nation in his father's name, and in the name of England, as a Royal symbol of our essential unity, and as their first Prince of Ireland in the British Commonwealth of free nations."

LABOUR'S STRANGE ATTITUDE.

A rather bad impression has been made on public opinion by the curious action taken by the Labour leaders with regard to the Prime Minister's invitation to them to enter a conference for the consideration of possible remedies for unemployment. It might have been supposed that the provision of work for the workless would have enlisted the strongest sympathies of those representing Labour, but it would seem that that is not so. There is an idea among the leaders that Mr. Lloyd George is trying to get them to come into another Coalition Government, and this they do not intend to do, even for a time. It is likely that they are hoping that a general election will place them in a position to formulate their own programme, but careful political experts do not incline to the view that Labour will return from a general election sufficiently strong to upset existing arrangements.

The report on conciliation and arbitration, issued by the Ministry of Labour in connection with the Industrial Court Acts, shows that over 900 Labour disputes were dealt with by the Industrial Relations Department of the Ministry last year. Wages negotiations during the year were of the utmost importance, and the statistics of the Ministry indicated in the aggregate an unprecedented advance in wages during 1920. The adjournment of claims was frequently accompanied by stoppages of work, and the number of strikes and lock-outs recorded was the highest since statistics have been kept. During the year 930 Labour disputes were "settled" under the auspices of the Department, but it is pointed out that a statistical statement of cases "settled" is not a satisfactory representation of the Department's activities in this direction.

IMPRISONED COUNCILLORS.

The Poplar Councillors have not yet been released, but it is fully expected that efforts now being made will result in their freedom during the coming week. A formula is being sought so that they may purge their contempt of Court in the easiest manner. Really they will have to admit that the Council is prepared to obey the order of the Government, and levy the receipts for the L.C.C. and other outside bodies. This having been done, it is understood that the London Mayors will participate in a conference on the equalisation of rates question. The Poplar Councillors are rather surprised that their imprisonment has had so little effect on public opinion.

A significant feature of the Liberal campaign this autumn is the reappearance of Viscount Grey of Fallodon, who is to speak at Berwick to-morrow night. It is understood that Berwick has been selected because it is the chief town in his old constituency, which is held by his old friend, Mr. Runciman, is now the Liberal candidate. Lord Grey does not intend to rest content with the delivery of this speech, but will address other meetings and resume his activities in the House of Lords at an early date.

TIME FOR SACRIFICE.

The Bishop of Lichfield (Dr. Kempthorne), commenting on unemployment doles in a pastoral letter for October, says that it is a time for sacrifice on the part of those who have work, for [illegible] and women should lack help. They should be ready for the sacrifices which [illegible] moderately well-off may be called on to make.

DISABLED SHIP CUT IN TWO.

ROWAN LOST ON VOYAGE TO DUBLIN.

SUNK BY VESSEL SUMMONED TO HER AID.

SURVIVORS' GRAPHIC STORIES OF DISASTER.

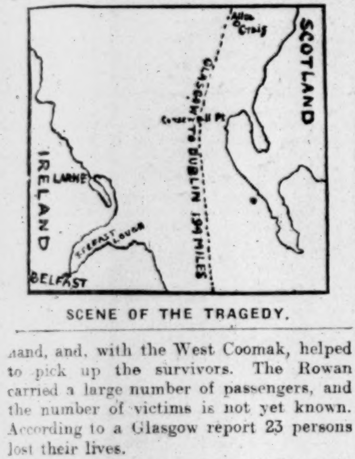
During a heavy fog early yesterday morning the steamer Rowan, one of the finest vessels in the service of the Laird Line Company, was wrecked while on a voyage from Glasgow to Dublin.

The Rowan was the victim of a remarkable double accident. A few miles off Corsewall Point, Wigtonshire, when the fog was at its densest, she was rammed by the West Coomak and badly damaged.

Wireless calls for help were sent out, and a destroyer and the steamer Clan Malcolm, picking them up, hurried to her aid.

The Clan Malcolm, unhappily, ran into the helpless vessel, cutting her almost in two, and she sank like a stone.

Fortunately, the destroyer was near at hand, and, with the West Coomak, helped to pick up the survivors. The Rowan carried a large number of passengers, and the number of victims is not yet known. According to a Glasgow report 23 persons lost their lives.



SCENE OF THE TRAGEDY.

The rescued were taken to Greenock, but two of them died on the way.

The Laird Line last night issued a statement that though the issue of tickets showed, with the crew, a total of 93 souls, and that as 77 were rescued, 16 were unaccounted for, there might have been other passengers returning with the final portion of tickets, of which the company had no record.

BLACK AS PITCH.

ROWAN CAUGHT IN A FOG.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

GLASGOW, Sunday.

A shipping disaster involving heavy loss of life occurred in the Firth of Clyde shortly after midnight on Saturday. The Laird Line steamer Rowan, which left Glasgow on its usual run to Dublin early in the evening, collided with an American vessel named the West Coomak, and was afterwards sent to the bottom by another vessel, which was speeding to its rescue, in answer to the S.O.S. message sent out by the Rowan.

On the way down the river the Rowan encountered thick fog, which still prevailed when the vessel was struck. Before she sank the wireless operator on the Rowan had time to send out the S.O.S., and it was picked up by the Clan Malcolm and H.M.S. Wrestler, a destroyer which was in the vicinity.

The collision occurred off Corsewall Point, on the Wigtonshire coast, a few miles from Ailsa Craig. Banks of fog were floating about, and it was pitch dark. The blow struck by the American steamer was not in itself vital. The Rowan withstood it well, though badly damaged and preparations were made for launching the boats and issuing lifebelts.

Almost fifteen minutes had elapsed after the collision, and the Rowan showed no signs of sinking when the Clan Malcolm came up, presumably in response to the S.O.S. call, and, in attempting to aid the stricken vessel, cut right through it amidships. In a minute the Rowan went down. The Clan liner, though badly damaged about the stem, was able to render assistance to the struggling passengers and crew.

The destroyer Wrestler came quickly to the scene, and, under its commander, Captain Heenan, the crew did thrilling rescue work. Boats and pinnaces scoured the surface of the water, which was lit up by the Wrestler's powerful searchlights, so that the Clan Malcolm was helped, too, in its search for survivors.

THE SURVIVORS.

Although the owners of the Rowan are unable to state how many passengers were on board, they think that the number would not exceed one hundred. This afternoon it was reported that twelve members of the crew and fifteen of the passengers had been rescued by the Clan Malcolm, and that six of the crew and eighteen passengers had been taken on board the West Coomak, and that the destroyer Wrestler had taken on board another six seamen and eighteen passengers. Two bodies were also recovered, making a total of 77 who have been accounted for.

The owners of the vessel have no means of knowing how many steerage passengers went on board with return halves of tickets. Those who travelled "cabin" were registered in the books of the owners, who also have the names of the crew. Up to a late hour the name of Captain D. Brown, the master of the Rowan, was not in the list of survivors.

Among the passengers who joined the vessel at Greenock about 7 p.m. were the members of the Southern Syncopated Orchestra, who, on Saturday afternoon, completed a three weeks' concert engagement at the Lyric Theatre, Glasgow, and were due to open in Dublin on Monday. It appears that the boat's departure from Greenock was delayed for over an hour owing to the late arrival of the orchestra.

Peter Robinson, the famous drummer of the band, was picked up and taken on board the Wrestler, but died from shock, due to exposure, while being conveyed to Greenock. Lieutenant Thomson, a Dumfries man, who had been a member of the Royal Irish Constabulary, also succumbed on board the destroyer, having been severely injured in the collision.

The Rowan was one of the largest and newest vessels in the fleet of the Laird Line. She was of 1,493 tons gross, and was built in 1909 by Messrs. D. and W. Henderson and Co., Partick. She had accommodation for about 200 cabin passengers and a large number of second class and steerage passengers.

MANY SAVED WITH DECK RAFTS.

In an interview last night, the leader of the Syncopated Orchestra, Mr. Robert E. Thompson, said that the Clan liner crashed right into the heart of the Rowan, which shook horribly before going down in what seemed a few seconds. Fortunately, after the first collision most of the passengers had donned lifebelts, and brought out deck rafts. Amid piercing cries the Rowan slipped down and left her living freight struggling in the water. Many were dashed against floating wreckage.

With other passengers Mr. Thompson helped to secure three floating rafts together. He saved a boy named Edward Spiers, of Glasgow, who was with difficulty brought round on the destroyer. The lad was heartbroken about the fate of a brother. Both were going to Dublin to visit a sister.

Anthony Cassels, a ship's steward, said that when the vessel sank he caught hold of a drowning woman. In endeavouring to get her on to the raft it turned turtle, but one of the Orchestra helped him to right it, and together they got the woman aboard. Fully an hour elapsed before the last of the survivors were removed from rafts to the vessels

RACE AGAINST TIME.

DESTROYER'S DASH TO THE SCENE.

Another account states that when the American cargo liner West Coomak, from San Francisco for Glasgow with a general cargo, struck the Rowan a slanting blow at the stern, listing her slightly, the Rowan appeared little the worse, and hopes were soon expressed that she would be able to make for port under her own steam. The passengers and crew, however, were somewhat alarmed and rushed on deck. Many were scantily attired, as the majority had retired for the night. There was a scramble for lifebelts and boats, but, as there was then little likelihood of the vessel sinking, the majority of those aboard were ultimately reassured. Ten minutes later, however, a second collision occurred, the Clan Malcolm crashing into the Rowan amidships. The Clan liner was outward from Glasgow to Liverpool. She tore a large hole in the Rowan, which shivered from stem to stern, and within a couple of minutes went down.

The captain, Donald Brown, who resided at Fairlie Park Drive, Partick, Glasgow, was on the bridge when the second collision took place, and was seen to go down with the vessel. It is feared that he is lost.

BRAVE WIRELESS MAN.

Before she went down the Rowan was able to send out the S.O.S., the wireless operator sticking bravely to his post. This heroic conduct was in great measure the means of averting a bigger calamity, as the message was picked up by His Majesty's destroyer Wrestler, then making from Kingstown to Rosyth via the North of Scotland. The destroyer was then 15 miles from the scene, but within little more than half an hour she was alongside the West Coomak and the Clan liner, which, fortunately, were not so seriously damaged as to prevent their crews from assisting in rescue work. The destroyer, under Captain Hamersley Heenan, rendered great service, and succeeded in picking up 23 survivors.

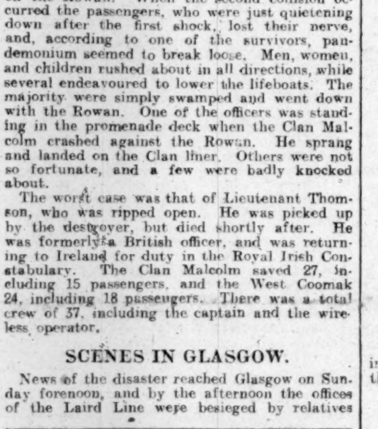
NERVE-SHAKEN PASSENGERS.

Before then there had been a wild scramble on the Rowan. When the second collision occurred the passengers, who were just quietening down after the first shock, lost their nerve, and, according to one of the survivors, pandemonium seemed to break loose. Men, women, and children rushed about in all directions, while several endeavoured to lower the lifeboats. The majority were simply swamped and went down with the Rowan. One of the officers was standing in the promenade deck when the Clan Malcolm crashed against the Rowan. He sprang and landed on the Clan liner. Others were not so fortunate, and a few were badly knocked about.

The worst case was that of Lieutenant Thomson, who was ripped open. He was picked up by the destroyer, but died shortly after. He was formerly a British officer, and was returning to Ireland for duty in the Royal Irish Constabulary. The Clan Malcolm saved 27, including 15 passengers, and the West Coomak 24, including 18 passengers. There was a total crew of 37, including the captain and the wireless operator.

SCENES IN GLASGOW.

News of the disaster reached Glasgow on Sunday forenoon, and by the afternoon the offices of the Laird Line were besieged by relatives and friends of the crew and passengers. Later the arrival of the survivors attracted a large crowd, and as the ill-fated men, women, and children—many wearing nondescript caps and several having bandages about the head—appeared they were greeted with respectful sympathy. When the destroyer Wrestler reached Greenock with her survivors seven had to be conveyed to hospital, suffering from the effects of their experience. The Clan Malcolm arrived later, leaking badly, and landed her quota of survivors. During the passage up the Clyde the passengers and crew had been cared for and supplied with llama coats and other clothing.



CAPTAIN D. BROWN.

SANK LIKE A STONE.

FIREMAN'S STORY.

Among the men who were interviewed was a fireman, Magnus Harper, 39 West Bothwell street, Anderton. He was without cap or jacket and was wearing overall trousers just as he had come off watch. His spell of duty finished, he stated, at midnight, and he had just come on deck a few minutes before the first collision. The night was pitch dark with a dense fog lying on the water, and the stars were obscured.

Prompted to tell the story in his own words, Harper said:—"I saw the big American—I don't know her name yet—suddenly appearing at our stern. She struck us very hard and seemed to cut clean through our stern. The damage that she caused was bad enough, but I think the Rowan would not have sunk if that was all that happened, or at all events we would have had time for everybody to get away. The boats were then got ready for launching, and some of them, I think, were got away. There was great excitement, of course, but we would have got through it all right, I believe, had not the Clan Malcolm put the finish to it.

"It was about twenty minutes,' I estimate, after the first blow that the Clan Malcolm struck us almost amidships, and with tremendous force she cut right into the Rowan for about ten feet. It was hopeless after that to proceed with the rescue work. The captain, I understand, gave the order "Every man for himself." In any case, there was nothing else for it. The ship went from us like a stone.

With the suggestion of a shudder Harper spoke of the terrible moment of this second collision. Boats were hanging in the davits in the process of being lowered when the Clan liner smashed them like matchwood against the hull of the Rowan as the stem penetrated deeply the side of the already disabled vessel. "I think," said Harper, "that a number of those who are lost must have been killed by the second collision. I saw a few myself who had absolutely no chance. They were dead before they reached the water. Up till then we were trying to get the women away in the boats. See that lady (and Harper pointed to one of the survivors who was being helped along the platform)—I remember giving her a hand into a boat. They did not know what they were doing, and it was awful to see the distraction of the women with children."

WENT DOWN WITH THE SHIP.

Harper showed the painfulness of the recollection to him, and began a description of the damage which the Clan Malcolm had sustained. Resuming his narrative he stated that the Rowan did not float for more than a minute after the second collision. Some of those on the deck jumped before the ship took the plunge, but most of them, he thought, were carried down with the ship. They clutched at wreckage, and supported themselves in that way until the boats came to their assistance. He was picked up and taken on board the Clan

DUBLIN MEN MISSING.

PLACE OF TERRIBLE MEMORY.

The information which Mr. Walter Baird, Manager in Dublin for the Laird Line, had yesterday afternoon was that the ss. Rowan was sunk as the result of a collision with another vessel, an ocean-going steamer, in a dense fog off Corsewall Point, in Wigtonshire, and almost directly east from Larne. Fifty-one of the passengers and twenty-four of the crew of the Rowan were reported saved. Thirteen of the crew were reported as missing.

Among the missing is Captain Brown, the ship's master, a native of Glasgow. He was well-known to Irish passengers to and from Glasgow, as he commanded for many years, and was the company's most experienced navigator. The Rowan was in the Government service during the war, and Captain Brown proved an able and efficient officer.

The Rowan left Glasgow at midday on Saturday, and, having called at Greenock, as usual, started at 7 o'clock on her voyage for Dublin. She was little over three hours at sea, when a dense fog was entered. The neighbourhood of Corsewall Point has a mysterious terror for mariners, and a Scottish gentleman said yesterday that the very mention of the name inspired him with fear. It has been the scene of many disasters from time to time. The wonder is that, under the circumstances, so many persons were rescued. The colliding ship also was, it was stated, considerably damaged. A wireless message was immediately sent out by the West Coomak, and it was picked up by H.M.S. Wrestler and by the Clan Malcolm. These vessels hastened to the scene of the disaster, and the Rowan was struck by the Clan Malcolm, and sank in a few minutes.

Among the passengers on board the Rowan were 37 members of the American Southern Syncopated Orchestra, all Negro players and singers, who were billed to appear this evening at the La Scala Theatre, Dublin, where they had a three weeks' engagement. Nineteen of the company are reported to have been saved, but one of these died afterwards. It is stated that one of the company had a premonition of danger, and that he declined to embark.

Mr. Lattimer, the agent in advance of the company, who is now in Dublin, was at the office of the Laird Line, like a great many other people, eager for some account of the disaster, and he stated that he was responsible for the organising of the orchestra, and that its break-up in this tragical and melancholy manner was a great blow to him.

The Rowan would in the usual course have arrived at the North Wall yesterday morning at about 7.30. She carried, it is estimated, about 140 passengers and crew, all told, and a large cargo of goods. Mr. Baird says that there were not many passengers now travelling on that route, but that in the height of the holiday season the vessel often carried up to a thousand passengers, and she had accommodation for 1,400. The first word of the catastrophe received in Dublin was brought by the London and North-Western Railway Company's steamer Snowden, which arrived at the North Wall shortly after six o'clock yesterday morning. The first officer of the vessel reported that they had picked up a wireless message from an Atlantic liner stating that the ss. Rowan had been sunk.

So far as the information received at the Dublin office goes, four Dublin cattlemen are believed to be missing. They are T. Duff, T. Cooke, J. Cullen, and R. Quinlan.

LIST OF MISSING CREW.

Late last night the Laird Line Company issued a revised list of the missing crew, which includes:—

Capt. Brown.
Acting Chief Steward Beveridge.
Third Engineer Burgess
Greaser Coleman.
Fireman J. Collins.
Acting Cook Fitzsimmons.
Fireman J. Kennedy.
Second Engineer Maclean.
Winch Fireman Murphy.
Fireman M. Livingstone.
Steward H. Watson.

Amongst the passengers saved was Miss Chalmers, who resides with her mother at 3 Lindsay road, Glasnevin. Miss Chalmers, who is in business in Dublin, had been on a holiday in Glasgow and was returning home. A telegram that she had been rescued was received at her residence yesterday afternoon.

Among the missing passengers is Mr. D. Mason, 45 Marguerite road, Glasnevin. Mr. Mason, who is a commercial traveller, went to Glasgow last week on business. He had also gone to Edinburgh, and a letter was received by his wife on Saturday stating that he was crossing to Dublin that night. No news had been received up to yesterday evening as to his fate.

A gentleman named Hartland, who was crossing on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Jackson, who resides at Lomond avenue, Fairview, Dublin, was supposed to have been a passenger, but she received a message saying that he had not sailed.

A lady named Skinnister, whose residence was at Waverley avenue, Fairview, is believed to be among the missing passengers.

Miss M'Gloughlin, a daughter of Mr. C. M'Gloughlin, 35 Pembroke Park, Clyde road, intended to come by the Rowan, but fortunately postponed her trip.

Mr Baird and the chief officials of the Company were at their office all day yesterday, and were kept busy answering the anxious inquiries of those who had friends or relatives on board the lost vessel.

The Laird Line has chartered the s.s. Lady Carlow from the British and Irish Steampacket Co. That vessel will sail from Dublin to Glasgow this evening, so that the regular service will not be interrupted.

WELL-KNOWN MUSICAL COMBINATION.

Owing to the sinking of the Rowan and the loss of 22 members of the Southern Syncopated Orchestra, who were coming from Glasgow to Dublin, the management of the La Scala Theatre, Dublin, have ordered the closing of the theatre to-night in sympathy with the relatives and friends of the unfortunate victims. Patrons who have booked seats will have their money refunded at the Box office.

The news of the disaster created a most painful sensation at La Scala Theatre, Dublin, when it became known yesterday morning. The American Southern Syncopated Orchestra, a well-known combination of negro musicians and singers, was travelling by the ill-fated steamer from Glasgow to Dublin to fulfil a three weeks' engagement, to begin to-night, at La Scala Theatre. Of the forty members comprising the company it is believed that only nineteen have been saved. Two members did not make the journey, so that the orchestra has lost nineteen of its number. Among the rescued were Mr. Lewis, general manager. Mr. Morris, who is described as the most famous banjoist in the world, did not travel by the boat, and another member of the orchestra, Mr. Certain, did not arrive in time to catch the steamer before sailing.

The Southern Syncopated Orchestra was composed of negroes from the Southern States of America. Lately it had engagements in Edinburgh and Glasgow, and the company left the latter city on Saturday night for Dublin, where their visit to La Scala Theatre had been eagerly awaited.

Mr. Lattimore, in an interview, explained that the company came originally from America about two-and-a-half years ago, and had been performing in London and throughout the provinces with the greatest success. The fate, he said, of Mrs. H. K. Reavis, the prima donna and a famous soprano, was unknown; but it was known that Mr. Pete Robinson, the drummer, who visited Dublin on a former occasion, was among the missing. Lieutenant C. Thompson, the musical director, had been saved.

It was stated in conversation with officials of La Scala Theatre that Mr. Morris, the banjoist, absolutely refused to travel by the steamer. He had, it was said, a premonition of coming evil, and would not sail no matter what money he received. Mr. Certain, another member, failed to reach the boat before her departure for Dublin, and a wire had been received from him, stating that he was coming by a later steamer.

It was learned later in the evening that Mr. Lewis, general manager of the orchestra, was among those rescued.

WAR ON HIGH PRICES.

DRASTIC PLANS.

LOCAL COMMITTEES ACTIVE.

FORCED REDUCTIONS.

The housewife finds herself in a difficult position owing to the high prices charged in the shops for almost all classes of foodstuffs, and active measures to deal with the "profiteers" are being taken throughout the country.

In this matter, at least, Ireland refuses to acknowledge partition, and nearly every town and village is forming its committee or adopting other means of lowering the prices of the necessaries of life.

Dublin Corporation has decided upon drastic action against the offenders, and has adopted the report of a special committee, which recommends that the first offence shall be punishable by a fine, and the second and subsequent offences by imprisonment.

The report also stipulates that retail price lists must be exhibited in all shops, including drapers. The recommendations are embodied in a bill, which provides for the investigation of prices and profits by anti-"profiteering" committees, the fixing of prices in different districts, and the imposition of penalties.

Since the Corporation gave evidence of its intention of taking the question up seriously, prices in the shops have dropped slightly. The public, however, is keenly watching the trend of events, and the belief that the retail prices still allow an unreasonable margin of profit is general.

CHEAPER BREAD AND MEAT.

To-day the Dublin Master Bakers' Committee give notice that the price of bread has been further reduced. The new price is 6½d. per 2lb. loaf, delivered; and 3½d. per 1lb. loaf, delivered.

In meat, in particular, the fall has been most welcome. This is largely due to the public-spirited action of a well-known cattledealer in buying and killing, and then retailing the meat at an average price of 1s. per lb.

Others have followed his example, and on Saturday another man was seen doing a splendid business in front of a house in Donore avenue, South Circular road. His charge for choicest cuts was 1s. per lb., and in less than two hours he had nothing left but some bones and a small quantity of suet. It is understood that he will repeat his experiment, as he found that he could do so with a "comfortable" margin of profit.

With such competition growing more intense day by day, the butchers find that they are compelled to reduce their prices. Many of them have already done so slightly, and it is believed that before many days a further reduction will be seen.

The retail prices in Limerick have shown no reduction, and a joint Committee of the Corporation and the Trades' Council has been formed to deal with the matter.

In Bantry there has been no appreciable fall, and, our Correspondent says, that consumers are becoming angry at the unjustifiably high retail prices, and that drastic action is threatened.

In the Midlands also dissatisfaction is expressed, and at a meeting in Athy shopkeepers were asked to reduce their prices and exhibit price lists.

Ulster is not behind in the movement. In Derry a project is on foot for the establishment of a milk-distributing centre for the city, and in Armagh the local co-operative society is to be asked to retail meat at popular prices.

FARMERS HIT.

FALL IN PRICES OF STOCK.

A heavy fall in the prices of stock and farm produce was the chief characteristic of the recent cattle fairs in West Cork. There was a small demand for springers and fat calves; but otherwise cattle were unsaleable. Fat pigs sold at from £4 to £5. Butter in the markets brought from 8d. to 9d. per lb.

The potato crop is under the average, and tubers are blackening rapidly. The wheat crop is small and rather inferior.

Retail prices in Bantry continue to be high. For chops and steak from 1s. 6d. to 1s. 8d. per lb. is charged; for bread 1s. 3d. per 4lb. loaf; and for coal £3 per ton. Boots and clothes of good quality show no real reduction.

Summing up the situation, our Correspondent says that unemployment is rampant, and the outlook in this direction is most gloomy.

SHOW THE PRICES.

ATHY MEETING'S DEMAND.

Transport workers, railway officials, postal officials, tradesmen, and other consumers met in Athy on Friday night to protest against the prices charged in the shops. The chief grievances were in regard to milk and meat, the current prices for which are 6d. per quart and 1s. 6d. per lb. respectively.

It was decided to circularise the shopkeepers complaining of the prices, and asking that price lists should be displayed. The public were asked to study the lists, and to refuse to deal with shops that with-held the information desired.

In regard to the railway and postal services, it was pointed out that war bonuses were being reduced, and that the shopkeepers showed no disposition to make allowance for the altered circumstances of their customers.

ARMAGH'S MOVE.

PRICES ALREADY COMING DOWN.

At the meeting of the Armagh Anti-"Profiteering" Committee, on Friday night, letters were read from Mrs. d'Arcy, wife of the Primate, and Mrs. Hobson, wife of the Archdeacon of Armagh.

Mrs. d'Arcy said that she had read with satisfaction the report of the meeting held to protest against the "enormous prices charged in Armagh for all food." She added that she had always dealt as much as possible with the shops in the place where she lived, but now she was determined that if the prices there did not fall to deal elsewhere.

"It seems absurd," Mrs. d'Arcy added, "that in a big London shop everything can be had of the very best quality at lower prices than in Armagh. The 2lb. loaf in London costs 5½d., whilst in Armagh I am charged 7½d., and everything is at the same rate. Fish here, too, is more than double the price in London. The traders, of course, must be allowed to make a fair profit, but at the present prices they are making too much."

Mrs. Hobson, in her letter, said that while they wanted more equitable prices, they wanted the quality maintained.

The Secretary was directed to ask a local coal merchant to quote his lowest rate, and also to ask the Gas Company to make a substantial reduction in the price of gas. The Co-operative Society is also to be asked to retail meat.

It is interesting to note that since the movement started in Armagh sugar has been reduced to 6d. a pound and stout to 7d. a bottle and 7d. a pint. A reduction has also taken place in the prices of meat and milk.

Pork in Keady market on Saturday fell to £5 per cwt.

THE POSITION IN DERRY.

The Derry and District Trades Council on Friday night considered proposals for the intensifying of the campaign against high prices.

Owing to the fall in the price of milch cows, and the fact that milk is being supplied to the creameries at 6d. and 7d. per gallon, the charge of 2s. 8d. per gallon in Derry was described as extortionate, and a demand was made for a substantial reduction.

It was mentioned that a project was under consideration to establish a distributing centre in the city, at which milk would be sold at a greatly reduced figure.

ENGLISH CORN PRICES DOWN.

A great slump in prices occurred on Saturday on the Nottingham Corn Exchange. Wheat fell from 57s. to 46s. a quarter, whilst the best qualities of barley showed a reduction in the quotations of 25s. a quarter.

CHEAPER BREAD FOR GLASGOW.

The Glasgow bakers on Saturday agreed to reduce the price of the 4lb. loaf to one shilling from to-day.

The Premier and Mrs. Lloyd George motored from The Chequers to London last evening, and met their daughter, Mrs. Carey Evans, on her arrival from India, for a few months' holiday, with her youngest baby.

QUEER EFFECT OF AN INJURY.

LEARNING TO WRITE AGAIN.

A case of an unusual, and, from the medical and surgical point of view, very interesting character came before Judge Linehan at the Dungannon Quarter Sessions, when an applicant who had lost portion of his brain in a shooting outrage applied for compensation.

Owing to the loss of the brain matter, the man, Sergeant John Sloyne, R.I.C., Dungannon, was allowed for a time to live the animal life. At a later stage he was found to be suffering from agraphia, with the result that he had to be taught the art of writing again. He is now able to write short sentences, but he will never be able to do brain work again, and he has been discharged from the Force.

The applicant received his injuries in an ambush of Crown forces at Pomeroy on May 16, and he claimed £5,000 damages.

His principal witness, Surgeon Fullerton, of Belfast, said that when Sergeant Sloyne was admitted to the hospital he was suffering from a compound fracture of the skull. Brain matter exuded from the skull and a piece of bone was embedded in the brain. Next, a portion of the brain, about the size of an egg, had to be removed, and the man was allowed to live the animal life in order not to interfere with the brain.

At a later stage he suffered from agraphia as a result of the loss of that part of the brain which controls the function of writing. When he had recovered somewhat the hospital staff began to educate him, and now he was able to write short sentences, but he would never be able to do any work involving brain power, and had been discharged from the police force.

Judge Linehan reserved judgment.

MARKED DIFFERENCES.

CHINO-JAPANESE RELATIONS.

PEKING, Thursday.

China's reply to the Japanese Note on the Shantung question was handed to the Japanese Minister here to-day. It states that the reason why China so far has been unable to open negotiations with Japan is because the basis upon which Japan wants to negotiate is either highly objectionable to the Chinese Government and people, or of a nature to which the Chinese Government has never given recognition.

As regards Shantung, Japan has no plan fundamentally acceptable to China. The Note of September 7 is quite incompatible with Chinese declarations and principles, and in view of the marked difference of opinion between the two countries China reserves the freedom to seek a solution herself whenever a suitable occasion presents itself.—(Reuter.)

MOPLAHS' NEW TACTICS.

AMBUSHING AND LOOTING.

SIMLA, Saturday.

An official communiqué says:—The General Officer Commanding in Madras reports that a large rebel band at Tiru Vazamkunnu, north of Mannaraghens, is proceeding towards Malabar.

Two rebel bands, each a hundred strong, from Nemini, attempted to cross the river, north-east of Malapuram, but were stopped by troops from Manjeri and Perintalamanna. Local rebels around Kokal are committing many thefts.

A later official telegram from Malabar states that a column of Dorsets met with opposition on returning from Vadapurum. One man of the Dorsets was wounded, and two rebels were killed. The rebels have raided houses south of Tanur, killing seven and wounding four of the inhabitants.

ENERGETIC MEASURES.

The General Staff review of the military situation in Malabar states that the Moplahs have recently changed their tactics, and are no longer giving open battle. They rely instead on ambushes and guerilla warfare, returning to loot and destroy places after the troops have left.

A difficulty is being experienced owing to the fact that there are at present practically no civil police capable of maintaining order after the military have restored it in any place. The Moplahs avoid military columns on all occasions excepting where there is a chance of a successful ambush. It has, consequently, been necessary to increase the troops employed by reinforcements, including a battalion of Gurkhas, a battalion of Kachin Chins from Burma, and a section of mountain howitzers and mule corps, wireless equipment, and motor transport. The infantry have been specially selected for experience in jungle work.—(Reuter.)

HANDCUFFED MAN

FASTENED TO CATHEDRAL RAILINGS.

Yesterday morning a man, named M'Conville, of 22 Teresa street, Belfast, was found handcuffed to the railings of St. Paul's Cathedral, Belfast, with a placard attached to his clothing. The handcuffs were removed, and he was set at liberty.

A few minutes before noon another man was found by the military chained to the railings of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Belfast; he gave the name of Bernard McGivern, Unity street, and stated that he was chained there by representatives of the I.R.A. for obtaining money, and telling a Protestant shopkeeper that he wanted the money in order to get forgiveness from a priest.

He has been detained by the police.

No fewer than forty-five persons were taken into custody in Belfast on Saturday night for breaches of the Curfew regulations.

NEW JUDGE WELCOMED.

Mr. Justice Wilson was congratulated on his elevation to the Bench at the Belfast Bankruptcy Court on Saturday.

Mr. H. M. Thompson, K.C., said that the honour conferred upon him gave much satisfaction to the members of the Bar.

Mr. J. B. McCutcheon, on behalf of the solicitors' profession, said that they looked forward with the utmost confidence to Mr. Justice Wilson's career as a judge.

Mr. Justice Wilson expressed his appreciation of the compliments paid him. It would be his endeavour to make the Court of Justice of Northern Ireland a Court, of which the province and those outside it might well be proud.

DULL SHIPBUILDING TRADE.

An aggregate of 70,700 tons was launched in Belfast for the nine months ending September last. This included eleven vessels, in comparison with which ten vessels, four oil barges, with a tonnage of 61,000, were launched in 1920. Of this year's total eight steamers of 44,000 tons were launched by Workman, Clark and Co., and three of 26,700 tons by Harland and Wolff.

The remaining quarter of the year will, however, show a big decrease compared with last year, and the increase in tonnage launched is not an indication of increased activity at the yards, where work on some vessels under construction has been suspended, and there is an entire dearth of new orders.

SEQUEL TO BRUTAL ASSAULT.

A man, who was arrested by the police, liberated by a hostile crowd, and re-arrested, was sentenced to two months' imprisonment at Belfast on Saturday.

Evidence was given that John Looby, the accused, was one of three men who attacked a civilian named Reid. The latter was badly beaten and kicked.

MISDIRECTED BLOW.

When Johnston M'Kernan, of Garden street, Belfast, was charged on Saturday with riotous behaviour on the previous evening, Constable Bateman said that the accused and three companions were singing "Dolly's Brae" in North Queen street. He told them to go home, when one of the men aimed a blow at witness, but hit the prisoner, accounting for the black eye and cut face which he had. The prisoner fell after the blow, and when he got up accused witness of striking him with his revolver. There had been rioting and looting in the district that night. Accused was fined 40s., but on account of his clean record the magistrate declined to bind him over.

COAL THIEVES.

During the hearing of a case in Belfast Police Court on Saturday it was stated that the Corporation lost hundreds of tons of coal from storage in Oxford street, and had to shift it to another place. The change, however, was ineffective, as the larceny still went on.

FROM TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

THE KING'S RETURN.

A HAPPY AUGURY.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

There is a peculiar fitness in the return of the King from Scotland on the eve of the Irish Conference and of an earnest endeavour on the part of the Government to grapple with the unemployment problem. How keen is His Majesty's solicitude for the large section of his subjects who are suffering either from unemployment or from other effects of the economic crisis through which the world is passing was abundantly shown at Manchester. The simple sincerity that marks all he says and does is reciprocated by the people in the simplicity of their affection for him.

By a happy chance his arrival at Euston also evoked an expression of good-will towards him and towards the Royal Family in quarters where those who perennially misunderstand the Irish character might not have expected it. A considerable number of Irish people who had gathered to welcome the Sinn Fein delegates to the impending Conference greeted the King with spontaneous heartiness. To call their cheers a "loyal demonstration" might be a misnomer, but it may safely be interpreted as revealing warm personal feelings towards the Sovereign who said at the opening of the Ulster Parliament, "For all who love Ireland, as I do with all my heart, this is a profoundly moving occasion in Irish history." Moreover, in the same speech, foreshadowing the very phraseology of the later correspondence between the Prime Minister and Mr. de Valera, he added:—"There is no wish nearer my own heart than that every man of Irish birth, whatever be his creed and wherever be his home, should work in loyal co-operation with the free communities on which the British Empire is based."

From that speech came the happier turn in the Irish situation. To-morrow another and, we trust, a positively fruitful stage in the realisation of the King's wish will begin. It is of good augury that the Irish should have cheered the head of the Empire who made the speech—and not only made it, but meant it—on his return to London. The Empire is a unity in diversity. Its diversities detract in no wise from its strength so long as they are bounded by common devotion to the ideals of ordered freedom for which the Empire stands.

We believe that the Crown is the most precious possession of the free communities that form the Empire. We believe, too, that in his straightforward devotion to its peoples the King has greatly served the Empire, and has deserved, as he assuredly has won, the love of all.

"NATIONALISM."

LORD HUGH CECIL'S DENUNCIATION.

Lord Hugh Cecil, in a long letter to The Times on Nationalism, says:—Survey Europe, from the Shannon in the West to the Vistula and the Danube in the East, and you will find everywhere the traces of the embittering and desolating influence of nationalism. It was the cause of the Great War. The German statesmen and soldiers who prepared and began the war were devoted patriots, animated by patriotic zeal, as anyone can see who reads the memoirs of Count Ludendorff, or Admiral Von Tirpitz, unselfishly given up to the service of their country. It was nationalism that not only made the war, but defiled it with the shameful crimes that have so deeply impressed our minds. The motive for the submarine campaign, for the burning of Louvain, for the cruel desolation of France, for the execution of Captain Fryatt and Miss Cavell was nationalist sentiment. Those who wrought these things loved their own country and hated its enemies, and if the German militarists were patriots, so also are the Sinn Fein murderers. The abominable crimes in Ireland, from which we turn sick with horror, were the fruit of nationalist sentiment.

We need not deny, the letter continues, that nationalism, under due discipline, is a beneficent force, like other passions, but when we see all the mischief it has done and the desolation it has wrought during the past few years, we have a right to ask that it should justify its deeds before the tribunal of conscience according to the principles of the moral law. Lord Hugh Cecil concludes by declaring that nationalism is the curse of Europe.

Commenting on Lord Hugh Cecil's letter, in a leading article, The Times remarks:—A settled European peace is of prompt importance to the world, and any idea which aims at contributing to it is worthy of respect. But our readers may doubt whether Lord Hugh Cecil, a letter from whom to-day denounces the spirit of nationalism as "the curse of Europe," has not gone too far in assigning all our present troubles to that source. It is possible that the word "nationalism" can be made to do duty for too much, and in using it we should not ignore its different qualities. It may stand, for instance, for the spirit of German aggression which led to the war, or it may stand for the recognition on the part of other nations, under perhaps international sanction and concerted action, of the rights and individualities of peoples hitherto repressed or absorbed by more powerful systems.

It is true that the European outlook may seem discouraging, and we should be the last to desire to hinder the effective preaching which he advocates by moralists, divines, schoolmasters, and newspapers of the duty of neighbourly conduct and brotherly love, but we cannot believe that anything substantial will be gained by decrying an instinct which in many parts of Europe has only just won the opportunity to express itself. Upon it, and not upon its negation, the future must be constructed, especially if Lord Hugh Cecil's analogy of "the passions" is sound, for internationalism, unless it develops naturally, and, therefore, gradually, is bound, sooner or later, to lead to even greater disillusionment.

WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

BRITISH REPRESENTATIVES.

The Washington Correspondent of The Times cables:—From a quarter which is well informed, but not official, I learn that it is expected here that the British delegation will be composed as follows:—Mr. Balfour, Lord Lee of Fareham, and probably Sir A. Geddes; Sir Robert Borden, from Canada; Mr. Pearce, Commonwealth Minister of Defence, from Australia, and, as the third Dominion representative, General Smuts, if possible. This list may be subject to change as to one or two of its members, but it is, nevertheless, certain that the British Empire will have a delegation of six, and it remains to be seen whether the United States and Japan will think it necessary to follow suit.

From the outset it has been the belief of President Harding's Administration that, both for sentimental reasons and to permit of possible allocation of delegates from each Power to special departments of the work to be done, there should be substantial equality of representation. Japan, while less insistent on this aspect of the case, where the difference was only between her three and the four from the United States, may now find the numerical disparity too great, and also add to her numbers.

AUXILIARY POLICE.

PRESENTATION OF MEDALS.

In our report of the review by His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of detachments of the Auxiliary Division of the R.I.C., which appeared in our issue of Saturday, it should have been stated that medals, numbering 126, were presented to members of the Regular Branch of the Force. A medal was also presented to a member of the Auxiliary Division of the Royal Irish Constabulary.

ROYAL WEDDING PRESENTS.

PARIS, Sunday.

The wedding present sent by King George and Queen Mary to Princess Xenia of Russia, whose civil marriage to Mr. William Leeds was celebrated yesterday, consisted of a diamond and ruby pendant, with a crown, on which were inscribed the initials, "G.M." Queen Alexandra sent an amethyst and diamond bracelet, and Princess Mary a beautiful fan.—(Reuter.)

PALESTINE DISCOVERIES.

JERUSALEM, Saturday.

The American excavations at Beisan, which stands on the site of the ancient Bethshan, are giving most interesting results. Beautiful mosaics and the chandelier of a Byzantine church have already been brought to light, as well as a block of Egyptian granite, an inscription on which has not yet been deciphered.

TRAIN FACILITIES FOR KELLS RACES.

The Great Northern Railway Company announce that, in connection with the Kells races on Wednesday next, a fast special train will run from Dublin to Kells at 11.30 a.m., stopping at intermediate stations. The return special will leave Kells at 5.30 p.m.

DAIL ENVOYS IN LONDON.

MR. COLLINS ON HIS WAY.

ARRANGING DETAILS OF CONFERENCE.

The last of the five Sinn Fein delegates to the Irish Peace Conference, Mr. Michael Collins, left Dublin last night. The other four travelled by the day mail on Saturday, being accorded a hearty send-off at Westland row and Kingstown Pier.

The delegates are quartered in two Chelsea houses, one in Cadogan square and the other in Hans place. They are accompanied by secretaries and a large staff. The Protestant members of the party attended Service at St. Luke's, Chelsea, yesterday, and the Roman Catholics went to Brompton Oratory.

It is reported that Mr. Lloyd George will receive one of the delegates this morning for an informal talk as to the conference arrangements. The meetings will probably take place at 10 Downing street.

DUBLIN'S FAREWELL.

HEARTY SEND-OFF.

The Dail Eireann peace plenipotentiaries left Dublin on Saturday morning for London to take part in the conference with representatives of the British Government at 10 Downing street to-morrow.

The occasion was marked by a demonstration of popular interest which interpreted the universal feeling of hopes for the success of the conference.

The finve delegates appointed by Dail Eireann were:—

Mr. Arthur Griffith, Minister of Foreign Affairs.
Mr. R. C. Barton, Minister of Economic Affairs.
Mr. George Gavan Duffy, Representative at Rome.
Mr. E. J. Duggan, Chief Liason Officer, I.R.A.
Mr. Michael Collins, Minister of Finance.

All but the last-named arrived early at Westland Row Station, and were cheered by the waiting crowds. Mr. Collins did not appear, and it was later explained that he was unable to travel.

The Dublin and South-Eastern Railway Company provided a special saloon carriage for the conveyance of the delegates to Kingstown. In addition to the four delegates the party included two official Secretaries, Messrs. Erskine Childers and Finian Lynch; the Publicity Department headed by Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, three or four female typists, and the wives of a few members of the party. Mr. Pierce Beasley, a member of Dail Eireann, who was going to Chester, travelled with the party.

When the train started at 8.25 there was considerable cheering and waving of hands. People along the route to Kingstown cheered, and wished the party God-speed. At the Kingstown Pier there was a large crowd of local people, including several Roman Catholic priests, to see them off by the ss. Curraghmore, by which they travelled to Holyhead. There was much photographing, and some cinema operators were busy. So intent were these on their duties that some of them failed to catch the order for non-travellers to get ashore, and in consequence had to make the journey to Holyhead.

The sea journey to Holyhead was made in perfect weather. The party on leaving the boat entered saloon carriages reserved for them by the London and North-Western Company, and proceeded on the journey to London.

A contingent of the Irish population of Liverpool and Chester was on the platform at the latter place to greet the envoys.

Mr. Michael Collins left Ireland for London by last night's mail boat. His presence on board the boat was unobserved until shortly before it sailed.

WELCOME AT EUSTON.

BOISTEROUS CROWDS.

At Euston the platform at which the Irish mail arrives had been barricaded, and a strong force of police kept the crowd at bay, only admitting the few people who had been provided with special platform tickets (says the Press Association). Sinn Fein believes in comfort, which almost amounts to luxury. Six powerful motor cars, lavishly upholstered, were drawn up in the station yard, ready to receive the delegates and convey them to residences that had been taken for them in Cadogan Gardens and Hans place.

The train ran into the station well up to time, and almost immediately the Irish bagpipes struck up, Sinn Fein flags were unfurled, and, even before the delegates had alighted from the train, there were frantic cheers from the huge crowd, mostly Irishmen and Irishwomen, that had gathered at the station approaches. Among those who had turned out to give the delegates a welcome were representatives of the Irish Self-Determination League, the Gaelic League, the Roger Casement Sinn Fein Club, the Irish League of Women, and the Gaelic Athletic Association, all headed by Mr. Art O'Brien.

The delegates had been provided with a special saloon, and none of them betrayed the weariness which usually marks those who make the journey from Dublin to London. Most of them were smiling, as though delighted with the prospect of their stay in London, and they greeted their friends vivaciously.

Mr. Arthur Griffith alone appeared to be unmoved by the reception accorded to him. When questioned by a Press Association representative he maintained his taciturnity, and would not breathe a single word as to the hopes or fears of the party for the success of the Conference.

The Press Association representative asked Mr. Gavan Duffy if it was likely that Mr. de Valera would visit London during the Conference, but he was unable to say, only remarking that Mr. de Valera is remaining in Dublin and will be kept in close touch with the Downing street negotiations.

Nor would Mr. Griffith say whether the delegates are endowed with plenipotentiary powers. It was learned, however, on good authority that any decision or agreement between the Government and the Sinn Fein delegates will have to be placed before Dail Eireann.

Mr. Erskine Childers, who is believed to have considerable influence in the Dail Cabinet, did not wear the worried look which was so conspicuous during the momentous days when the London conferences hung in the balance. He sprang from the saloon, and, noticing Mr. McGrath, one of the members of Parliament for Dublin (who had been a frequent envoy to the Prime Minister), on the platform, cried out:—"Hello, Joe! Here we are again."

After many flash-light photographs had been taken, the delegates entered the waiting motor cars, which very slowly made their way through the dense throng, amid ringing cheers, for Chelsea.

IRISHMEN GREET THE KING.

An interesting coincidence was that the Royal train had only arrived half an hour earlier, and virtually the same crowd which cheered the Irish delegates had given an equally generous welcome to the King and Queen on their return to London from the North.

The Sinn Fein delegates on leaving Euston Station drove by way of Euston square, Woburn place, Southampton row, Oxford street, Shaftesbury avenue, Trafalgar square, Whitehall, and Piccadilly, to their residence at Hans place and Cadogan Gardens.

A Press Association representative, describing the scene outside Euston Station, says:—About an hour before the Irish mail was timed to arrive the approaches to Euston were thronged by London Irish men and women, most of whom were wearing green flags. Many women had donned blouses, hats, and coats of vivid emerald, and almost everyone made some attempt to show the Sinn Fein colours. Immediately the eight cars conveying the delegates to their destination emerged from the station the throng rushed the police, clamoured around the cars, climbing on to them, cheering and waving Sinn Fein flags, and providing a scene of the wildest excitement.

On the outskirts of the crowd many men were selling miniature green flags, with the Irish harp in gold on them, and also souvenir programmes of the arrival.

Further along the route things were much quieter. About 6 o'clock a line of people took their stand along the kerbstones at the Whitehall end of Trafalgar square, all sporting Irish colours. As the delegates' cars shot by in the gathering dusk the crowd gave a rousing cheer, the occupants of the cars responding by leaning from the windows and waving hats and handkerchiefs.

Men and women engaged in gathering the potato harvest in the East Lothians have come out on strike for higher wages, and operations are virtually at a standstill.

THE KING AND MR. CLYNES.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND OVERSEAS TRADE.

HIS MAJESTY'S CONCERN.

The King made sympathetic reference to unemployment on Saturday when he opened the extension of the Royal Exchange at Manchester. His Majesty was accompanied by the Queen and Princess Mary. In order not to cast any burden on the city there was, at the King's own request, neither pomp nor ceremonial.

Acknowledging the presentation of an address of welcome at the Town Hall, His Majesty said that he was sorely troubled by the widespread unemployment, which was causing so much suffering to so many of his people. "It is my sincere hope," he added, "that the efforts of my Ministers to alleviate the present and prevent future unemployment may be successful.

"I earnestly pray that by the blessing of Divine Providence the united efforts of all classes of the community may wipe out the evil effects of the great war and restore the commercial and productive activity of the nation, and thus bring employment, well-being, and happiness to all my people."

Speaking later at the Royal Exchange, His Majesty said he noted with interest that that day's ceremony marked the completion of an undertaking which was begun immediately before the outbreak of the terrible war. He sincerely hoped they could accept that as an indication that the interruption of the normal course of trade caused by the war was coming to an end.

It was his earnest hope and prayer that that ceremony "may prove to be the starting point of a steady and ever-increasing development in the trades which are centred in this Exchange, and that this in its turn may serve to promote cordial and friendly relations between my people and the peoples, whether within or without my Empire, who are united to-day by commercial ties."

A number of presentations were subsequently made to Their Majesties. The King sent for Mr. J. R. Clynes, who was among those present, and had a long chat with him, discussing the passages in the address relating to the possibilities of the renewal of international trade.

Mr. Clynes said this seemed to be a message of hope, and remarked that until we did something to restore our overseas trade we should have, he feared, a very bad time during the winter.

The King agreed, and expressed the hope that something would be done to restore international trade.

RIGHT TO CHOOSE.

MR. CLYNES ON IRELAND.

Mr. J. R. Clynes, M.P., speaking at a Labour Party meeting at Manchester on Saturday afternoon, said that in the House of Commons the Government was strong, but in the country it was discredited. It could not shape policy on outstanding questions, because policy was an out-growth of principles, and the Government had not any.

There were three outstanding questions of national importance to-day. There was the general position of our foreign affairs, the subject of Ireland, and the question of unemployment. They were all inter-related, and were in different ways each an expression of the other.

Regarding the conference between the Government and the Sinn Fein leaders, he expressed the hope that the outcome would be the establishment of the fellowship of nations, founded upon real freedom and good-will. (Cheers.) "We cannot have Ireland within the Empire without Ireland's consent," said Mr. Clynes. "Forced union is no union. Between countries there can be no union unless it is a union of mutual self-respect and equal consideration of each other's rights, and of each other's duties.

"Ireland is sometimes spoken of as a Dominion. She is more than that. For centuries she has had the attributes of a great nation. She has history and tradition behind her. She has the geographical and other qualities that denote a nation, and I say that such a country cannot be retained by any other country by means of force. We must associate Ireland with us on the basis of real, genuine, and lasting freedom."

He hoped, he might add, that when a settlement was reached on the rights of Ireland and her form of government, leaders of all parties and of all sections in Ireland, as well as in that country, would have said their last word in the sowing of the seeds of hatred, of division, and of conflict. (Cheers.)

LABOUR'S ALOOFNESS.

Dealing with unemployment, Mr. Clynes denied the statement made in some quarters to-day, that at the recent conference between the Prime Minister and the Labour leaders some of the Labour representatives favoured the co-operation of Labour in a joint consultative committee to include employers and financiers.

"That is quite inaccurate," declared Mr. Clynes. "The whole of those Labour men present were quite unanimous in declining to take part in a joint committee. There was a slight division of opinion on another point, and that was whether we should meet the Prime Minister at all, even to discuss our own proposals; and the view held by a very large majority was this—We have formulated in outline the principle of Labour's remedy. We have it in a bill which I introduced into the House of Commons, and we said that, as the Prime Minister wants us, in the first instance, to meet him to discuss in detail our proposals, we are willing to meet him, to defend, and justify, and explain in detail any of the proposals which Labour puts forward to solve the problem.

"We resolved unanimously not to play anybody's game of further delay, and not to discuss with anybody the scheme of other people. If the Government say that our scheme is not workable, let the Government produce a better scheme, and take the responsibility of their own proposals. The hand of Labour must be free when the Government's proposals come before Parliament to examine and amend them, and discuss them, and resist them if we think them not good enough.

"There had been no Coalition since the last election. Really there was a Conservative Party in power, led by a Radical, who had forgotten any of the shreds of his former party principles." (Cheers.)

LIBERAL THEOLOGY.

CANON'S APPEAL TO THE UNIVERSITIES.

Canon Barnes preached before the University of Birmingham at the Service yesterday which commemorated the 21st anniversary of its foundation.

He urged that English Universities should give their support to those liberal theologians in the various Churches who, at the risk of suspicion and misrepresentation, were seeking to combine the Christian faith with modern knowledge. It was an unworthy insinuation that such men were false to the faith which they professed.

When surprise and misunderstanding and mere foolish prejudice ceased to be noisy it would be found that these pioneers had demonstrated anew the inherent strength, intellectual, moral and religious, of Christianity.

Though theology was not religion, religion needed good theology if it was to retain the intellectual respect of a modern community. A faith which in popular estimation was tied to bad science, unintelligent enthusiasm, or irreligious theology had no driving force. When complaint was made that food was musty, it was not enough to consider carefully whether women as well as men should serve it, or whether sports, rightly directed, would produce a less critical appetite. If the complaint was just let them get rid of the stale material, but it was well to remember that a slight trace of some musty ingredient would make wholesome fare unpalatable.

Christian dogma did not need such radical reconstruction as was popularly supposed. Liberal theologians were not throwing their faith to the wolves; they were saving it from the perils of ignorant affection.

DR. GREGG AT DALKEY.

The Archbishop of Dublin attended Divine Service yesterday morning at the Parish Church, Dalkey, on the occasion of the Harvest Festival. The chancel and other parts of the church were tastefully decorated. There was a very large congregation, and the Service was conducted by the Rev. C. S. Collins, M.A., Rector.

The Archbishop preached the sermon. Referring to the earthly harvest and the fruits of natural life that had been gathered in, His Grace said that Christ was the life, and in this world was the supreme living reality. The human soul could only have life in association with Christ. He would not give that life to men without their consent. When people turned from Christianity to Christian science and spiritualism, it simply showed that they did not realise what Christ was.

DUBLIN AND THE PROVINCES.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS

GAOL FOR FORTUNE TELLER.—Rose Wilson, alias Elizabeth Davis, a gipsy, was sent to gaol for seven days by Mr. Lupton, K.C., in the Dublin Police Court on Saturday, for fortune telling. A policewoman went to a gipsy encampment in Greenville avenue. She paid one shilling to have her fortune told; there were about twenty other women there for a similar purpose. The accused woman told the witness that she was a widow by choice. She also told her that she would marry again, and that she had a bright future. A little girl came into the caravan, and said something to the gipsy, who told witness that there were two detectives outside, and that if she was asked any question she should say she was buying lace.

PLEA FOR THE POOR.—The Rev. P. Gannon, S.J., preached a sermon in the Church of the Star of the Sea, Sandymount, yesterday, in aid of the sick and destitute poor visited and relieved by the Sisters of Charity, Lakelands, Sandymount. It was a forcible appeal to the generous people of Dublin to continue their kind support to a charity which has for a long time been helping to mitigate the sufferings of the poor, to whom the Sisters bring consolation and comfort.

NEW DREDGER.—Deep Worker, the new dredger, purchased by the Dublin Port and Docks Board, is due to arrive from Glasgow. This new bucket dredger, which was built in 1920 at Renfrew, is 169 feet 9 inches in length, 31 feet 2 inches in beam, 12 feet 4 inches in depth, and has a "tonnage" of 403. It was built by Messrs. Lobnitz and Co., Ltd.; engined by Messrs. C. H. Campbell and Co., Ltd., and is registered at the Port of London.

Sarah Daly, aged 42, and Elsie O'Keeffe, aged 30, were returned for trial on Saturday by Mr. Lupton, K.C., on a charge of attempting to drown the latter's child, at the West Pier, Kingstown, on September 30.

The Flax and Hemp Trade Board gives notice that new rates of pay, and overtime allowances, applicable to women workers in the spinning branches, will come into operation on the 24th. A notice giving full particulars of the changes will be issued from the Office of Trade Boards, 21 Parliament street, Dublin, in due course.

An unknown cyclist was held responsible by a Coroner's jury for injury that caused the death of an elderly woman, Mary Jane Parker, St. Thomas's terrace, South Circular road, Dublin. She was crossing the street when she paused to avoid a motor lorry, when she was knocked down by a cyclist, whom the police had been unable to trace.

At an inquiry into the circumstances of the death of a boy, James Butler, employed by the Dublin United Tramways Company, it was stated that he was travelling with four empty wagons to the dépôt at Terenure, and fell under the leading wagon. The driver heard a shout, and, on getting down, found the lad beneath the wagon. The boy was acting contrary to orders in leaving the tram when it was in motion. The jury exonerated the driver.

CONNAUGHT.

Our Ballinasloe Correspondent says that at the fair there on Friday a horse was sold for 6s. 8d. Later the purchaser disposed of it for 9s. 6d., but it was sold again for 10s. Then it strayed away, and has not been found by its latest owner.

While 15 men were digging out sand from the side of a pit at Dalgan, Shrule, there was a heavy fall of earth. All the men sprang clear except one, who was buried under many tons. It took some hours to dig him out, and he was found to have died from a fractured skull.

WICKLOW OUTRAGE.—Two men, Patrick Kearns and Christopher Crane, were prosecuted at Newtown, Wicklow, Petty Sessions on Saturday on charges of wilfully damaging the residence of M. Moynihan, The Rookery. It was stated that some men came to the house, and said that they had a message from the "I.R.A." for Moynihan's son. As the son was not produced, the men smashed the glass porch and door. They then went away. The Bench held that there was insufficient evidence against the two men, and they were discharged.

ARMED AND MASKED RAIDERS.—About 20 armed and masked men went to Kilmoroney, the house of Lady Weldon, on the Queen's County side of Athy, one night last week, "held up" the inmates, including Lady Weldon and her son, at the point of revolvers, and made a thorough search of the premises. They took away some field glasses.

P. J. Dunne, of Mountpleasant terrace, Upper Dargle road, Bray, was attacked by two men shortly after 11 o'clock on Saturday night, and robbed of £5. One of the men was masked, and appeared to be armed.

Most Rev. Dr. Foley, Roman Catholic Bishop of Kildare and Leighlin, presided at the Requiem Mass which was held at Newbridge Church for Monsignor Tynan, whose death has caused widespread regret in Newbridge and the parish.

Yesterday and on Thursday the annual Harvest Thanksgiving Services were held at Bective Parish Church, Navan, County Meath, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. The choir rendered special music, and the sermon was preached yesterday by the Rev. C. Beere, and on Thursday by the Rev. Canon Murray. Collections amounted to £16, which will be devoted to foreign missions.

MUNSTER.

Diphtheria and scarlatina are still prevalent in the Limerick district, although the epidemic has abated. The city schools and places of public assemblage will remain closed for a short time longer.

For failing to pay the standing wages to a workman, Michael Franklin, a farmer, of Drombana, was fined £5 and 20s. costs at Limerick Petty Sessions on Saturday. He was ordered to pay the deficiency, which amounted to £8 1s. 5d. The prosecution was instituted under the Corn Production Act, 1917.

HOUSE-BREAKING EPIDEMIC.—When two men named John Green and William Coyle were found guilty at Londonderry Sessions of house-breaking, Mr. E. J. Kelly, who appeared for Coyle, stated that his client had suffered severely at the hands of some unknown men, who had kidnapped him, detained him for four days, and had left him tied up to a lamp-post in Londonderry. The prisoners were each sentenced to nine months' imprisonment. In sentencing two other men Alan and David Greer, to nine months' imprisonment for shop-breaking, the Recorder said that the police were determined to put down the house-breaking and larceny that was going on in Londonderry.

L. G. B. "OVERRULED."—At to-morrow's meeting Donegal County Council will be called upon to define its attitude towards a letter from Dail Eireann, which directs that Londonderry No. 2 District Council shall be incorporated with Inishowen. Some time ago the Local Government Board ordered that Londonderry No. 2 should be incorporated with Letterkenny.

A lad named Hughes has been gored to death by a bull in the Culleville district of County Monaghan.

Carrickmacross Workhouse has been closed under the county amalgamation scheme, and the inmates removed to the county institution at Monaghan. Forty were taken to their new quarters in motor lorries on Saturday, while others moved out on a weekly pension allowance to reside locally.

A BRAHMIN'S CONVERSION.

At the Harvest Festival at the Charleston road Methodist Church on Sunday morning, the preacher was the Rev. T. Subrahmanyam, a converted Brahmin from Madras. He stated that the Brahmins were the custodians of the Sacred Scriptures of the East, and were reckoned the aristocrats, the Levites of India. The two classes of missionary work which appeal to them, he said, were higher education and medical work. They had [illegible] strong prejudice against a foreign religion, but were losing faith in their own, which did not satisfy the cravings of their souls.

Mr. Subrahmanyam was destined to be a religious teacher by his parents. At thirteen years his father died. At fifteen he got an opportunity to learn English, and even studied for medicine, but his mind was filled with spiritual unrest, and he went to a hermit's cave, and lived there for many months with his mind concentrated upon the extinction of his personality. He fed on leaves and roots, and seldom spoke. He travelled through desolate mountain regions, and was often in danger from wild beasts.

When the great decision to become converted was made he suffered sundry persecutions from his relatives.

To-night at 7.30 Mr. Subrahmanyam is to speak at the Harvest Festival Service in Charleston road Methodist Church. Rev. J. J. Macauley, M.A., of Rathgar, will also preach.

DISABLED SHIP CUT IN TWO.

Malcolm, on which they were taken to Greenock.

Harper, in reply to a question, said that he knew of eight members of the crew who were missing—three firemen, a greaser, a donkeyman, the second and third engineers, and the skipper.

SHOT THROUGH PARTITION.

Edward Fox, a marine fireman, said that he was sitting dozing below when the collision occurred. "The effect was to pitch me into a wooden partition with such force that I went right through it. When I regained consciousness I was locking right down into the sea through a gap at the stern of the ship. Beside me there burst a steam pipe leading to the capstan, and there was a great cloud of steam. I groped my way out to the hatch where the luggage is stowed, and jumped to the hand railing of the upper deck to get clear. Though there was considerable excitement on deck there was no panic. I was busy helping to lower rescue boats when the second collision occurred. Before I could reach the port side our ship sank with all on board. After being entangled in a lot of lifeboat tackle, I caught the life line of a raft, which proved my salvation.

"The scene in the water was indescribable. I was surrounded by people struggling for their lives, and their screaming was heartrending."

SCENES AT GREENOCK.

Twenty-seven survivors were brought ashore by the Clan Malcolm. They were landed at Greenock, and a number of them, including several members of the crew, travelled to Glasgow by the Caledonian Sunday train, which arrived at the Central station at 4.12. A number of relatives of those known to have sailed by the Rowan, including a son of the captain, were at the station awaiting the arrival of the train. About a score of survivors, it is stated, were on the train which carried also a large number of other passengers.

Those who had come through the disaster were easily distinguished from their fellow passengers on the train. One or two were in uniform, the mate of the Rowan and another junior officer being in the party. Several seamen and firemen were also in the company, and a few of these men bore the traces of their terrible experience.

One man had a gash on his nose, and two or three were without jackets or caps. Their appearance suggested the haste with which they were obliged to leave the sinking ship. There were not many passenger survivors on the train. Two elderly ladies were noticeable. One, who was evidently suffering from shock, had to be assisted along the platform.

Immediately they emerged from the platform the survivors were surrounded by those who had gained admission to the station—not a very large number—and questioned by those who were anxious regarding the fate of relatives or friends. The survivors readily gave what information they could, being able in several instances to gratify the enquirers with good news.

A pathetic scene was presented by a small boy who lay weeping in the arms of a man. The boy's emotion seemed to arise from his meeting with a male survivor, in whom he clearly had an affectionate interest. From the station the members of the crew went to the Laird Line offices in Robertson street. The officers who were approached by newspaper men were reticent about describing the circumstances before they had given their account of the disaster to the shipping company. They preferred, they said, not to say anything at that stage.

The other members of the crew were not subject to the same restraint, and a few of them gave more or less graphic accounts of the accident.

ESTIMATED TOTAL LOSS.

The latest estimate of the loss of life makes the number about 23. The survivors number 75, and two deaths occurred after rescue. It is presumed that not more than 100 in all were on board.

WRECK ITEMS.

All the instruments of the Southern Orchestra which were on board the Rowan have been lost.

The West Cosmak is owned by the United States Shipping Board.

No military were on board the Rowan.

The Rowan's vacant berth at the North Wall was an object of much interest on the part of crowds of people yesterday.

The cargo carried by the Rowan was composed of about 100 tons of general goods taken on board at Glasgow, and about 50 tons of sugar which was shipped at Greenock.

In the ordinary way the s.s. Rowan should have embarked hundreds of cattle as well as goods and passengers at Dublin this evening, and sailed for Greenock and Glasgow to-night.

The Clan Malcolm, whose name is associated with the collision, is given in Lloyd's as a steel screw steamer of 5,994 tons, built in 1917 at Stockton-on-Tees, registered at the port of Glasgow.

An interesting incident was related at the port yesterday in connection with the Chief Steward of the Rowan, Mr. Thomas Ward, who, it appears, had missed the trip this time owing to illness. He was steward of the Laird Line steamer Shamrock when that steamer ran, in a fog, into Lambay Island on a Sunday morning, and afterwards became a total wreck.

The S.O.S. messages were picked up by the Belfast steamer, Kenbane Head, and the Glasgow steamer, Woodcock.

ROWAN'S WAR RECORD.

During the war period the Rowan was, with her younger sister, the s.s. Maple, requisitioned by the Government, and conveyed thousands of troops and material from British ports to ports in France and abroad. Not once did she meet with accident, and on terminating her war service she was re-conditioned in the South of England, and returned to the Dublin and Glasgow service of her owners not one whit the worse. The Maple may probably be now put upon the Dublin and Glasgow services of the Laird Line Company.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN LEAVES.

ENTHUSIASTIC SEND-OFF.

"Charlie" Chaplin sailed from Southampton on Saturday afternoon on the Cunard liner Berengaria to return to America. He had an enthusiastic send-off.

In an interview with a representative of the Press Association before sailing, Charlie Chaplin said that he was delighted with the reception which had been accorded him, not only in the old country, but on the Continent. Everyone had been most kind, and he carried away with him many cherished recollections of his holiday.

With regard to the future, he was under contract to produce two more films for his syndicate, and then intended to produce on his own. His own pictures would be taken in America, and he hoped to bring the first over to England next winter, probably about December.

Several hundred people assembled on the quayside to wish him bon voyage. As the vessel cast her moorings he lifted a pretty little girl of ten aloft, and described her as his new leading lady. Brandishing hat and stick, he shouted, "Lots of love; see you next winter," as the vessel steamed away.

Among other passengers on the ship were Miss Alma Taylor, the "English Mary Pickford," and Mr. Hepworth, managing director of the Hepworth Film Productions.

This is the Berengaria's last trip before her conversion to oil fuel burning.

BUSY DIVORCE COURTS.

The list of cases for hearing in the London Divorce Division numbers 1,014, as well as 418 cases in the reserve list.

There are 843 undefended petitions and 167 defended. Several society cases are entered, including the petition of the Countess of Drogheda for a divorce following a decree for restitution of conjugal rights which was granted by Mr. Justice Horridge on May 25 last. Mrs. Iris W. Leeds (better known as Miss Iris Hoey, the actress) seeks similar relief from her husband, Mr. Mashiter Leeds, this petition also following a decree for restitution. Lady M. E. B. Spicer also petitions for a decree of divorce against Sir Howard Spicer.

In the list of defended cases appears that of Lady Synolda Walker, who petitions for divorce from her husband, Captain Sir Robert James Milo Walker, Bart. In the same list is the case of M. M. Mourilyan v. W. F. I. Mourilyan, a wife's petition, and Mourilyan v. Mourilyan and Fazil, a husband's petition, the co-respondent being cited as H.H. Prince Ibraham Said Fazil.

On the regular opening day of the sittings on Wednesday next there will be two Divisional Courts—one for ex parte motions and one for Crown paper cases.

INDIAN HARTAL PLANS.

BOMBAY, Saturday.

The Working Committee of the National Congress and Khilafat Workers has passed a resolution advocating a general voluntary "hartal," or sympathetic strike, all over India on the day of the arrival of the Prince of Wales in Bombay, and urging provincial committees to arrange a boycott on the occasion of the visits of His Royal Highness to their respective cities.—(Reuter.)

FARMER'S NIGHT OF TERROR.

STORY OF A RAID.

Serious allegations were made against Crown forces at Dungannon on Saturday, when Patrick Hagan, a farmer and potato merchant, claimed £500 for personal injuries.

Hagan told Judge Lenihan that on May 18 nine or ten men came to his house at night, and one of them caught him by the throat. They placed him with his face towards the wall, and began to wreck the house. Every time that he turned his head to see what was going on he got a blow on the face with the butt of a rifle, and one of the men struck him on the forehead with a revolver. The men, who were dressed in policemen's caps and capes, after searching the house, ordered him outside, and said that they were going to shoot him.

Hagan's wife and children were screaming in the bedroom, and he ran to them. The men followed him, and smashed three of his ribs with the butts of their rifles. They brought him outside, and after a consultation allowed him to go into the house.

Later the party returned, and, bursting in the door, rushed into the bedroom. They threw the children out of their cots, and said that they were searching for arms. They produced a paper which stated that they had searched the house for arms and had done no damage, and he was compelled at the point of the bayonet to sign it, one of the party stating that they would put Popish notions out of his head. He did not know any of the men, as they had the police caps pulled down over their eyes.

NEVER HAD A RIFLE.

He had heard of "B" Specials patrolling the roads, but he did not know that they were searching for arms. They asked him where his rifle was, and he told them that he never had a rifle in his life. Witness was a farmer and potato merchant, and owing to the injuries that he received he was unable to follow his occupation.

Medical evidence was given by Surgeon Fullerton and Doctor Marmion to the effect that the applicant had three fractured ribs on the left side, and that the left arm had been severely injured and showed appearances of wasting.

His Honor said that the allegations had been made that the raid had been the work of "B" Specials, and he would like some evidence on the matter.

District Inspector Walshe said that the matter had not been reported to the sergeant in charge of the district. The applicant did not complain to the police, and the authorities did not know anything about it until the notice of the claim was served. From the allegations made he thought that the raid was carried out by "A" Specials.

His Honor—Serious allegations have been made, and, whether they are "A" or "B" Specials, they are forces of the Crown. Are the "B" Specials authorised to raid for arms?

District Inspector—The "A" Specials are authorised to raid for arms, but I never heard of the "B" Specials raiding unless in charge of a regular police officer. The "B" Specials have overcoats and caps, but the rifles are handed out to them at different places.

Mr. Maguire argued that if the raid had been authorised it would have been reported. Instead of that, the applicant had been subjected to a night of terror, and had received an unmerciful beating.

His Honor reserved judgment.

COASTGUARDS' CLAIMS.

CURIOS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

At the Drogheda Quarter Sessions claims were made by the coastguards in Queensborough and Clogherhead Stations, which were maliciously burned on 23rd June and 29th June last respectively.

His Honor made the following awards:—£350 to Chief Officer Wynning, for personal property destroyed; £200 to Coastguard Polly, £370 to Coastguard G. H. Sheppard, £270 to Coastguard Henry Hughes, £216 to Coastguard Edward Rock.

Chief Officer Arthur Broadbark, whose belongings included a pair of black ebony elephants which he bought in Colombo in 1888, was awarded £415. Coastguard Coulhaine, who stated that he had been with Captain Scott on the Antractic Expedition for three years (1910-13) and had collected various curios, was awarded £350. Coastguard Watson, who stated that he had curios which he had collected in Durban and the Cape during the South African War, and others which he had got in Jerusalem, including stones from Rachel's Tomb, and a family Bible with a back made from wood taken from the Mount of Olives, was awarded £350. Coastguard Regan was awarded £350, and Coastguard Greene £270.

£40 FOR A GIRL'S HAIR.

Kate Carolan, Dunleer, was awarded £40 compensation for the malicious cutting of her hair on the night of 23rd April last.

She said that four armed and masked men came into the house at midnight, caught her roughly, cut her hair, and threatened to shoot her and cut off her ears if she did not cease keeping company with Crown forces.

LEFT FOR DEAD.

£4,000 FOR MAN WHO FACED FIRING PARTY.

A man who was stated to have been tried by a Sinn Fein court as a spy, sentenced to death, and shot has been awarded £4,000 compensation.

He is John McCabe, an ex-Service man, and he told Judge Johnston at Castleblayney Quarter Sessions that on April 14, while at Carrickmacross, a stranger offered him a lift in a motor van. He accepted the offer, and on getting into the vehicle he found four men inside.

After proceeding four or five miles the car was pulled up, and he was ordered out. He was blindfolded, and, in spite of his screams and struggles, was led into a house. The window of one of the rooms was broken, and three of the men went in through it, leaving the driver with the car. They forced McCabe to go in with them, and then charged him with coming from Belfast to spy upon them.

McCabe added that he was bound, and two of the party then left the house, returning later with about 15 other men.

McCabe was again charged, and protested his innocence. A priest was sent for. He received absolution, and then appealed to the priest to intercede with the party to save his life. The clergyman replied that he could not interfere, and he then left through the broken window.

McCabe was taken by the entire party across country, was made to face a bush, and a handkerchief was placed over his eyes. A shot rang out and he fell with a bullet wound in the back. While lying on the ground he was shot in the thigh and in the head. The party, evidently believing him to be dead, retired. After they had gone McCabe struggled to his feet and dragged himself, with his arms still pinioned, to two houses, where he sought admission, but the occupants would not admit him. He struggled to an outhouse and fell exhausted. He was discovered next morning by the owner, who released him from the strap.

In addition to the compensation, McCabe was awarded £104 4s. 6d. medical expenses and 15 guineas other expenses.

DUBLIN SYMPHONY CONCERT.

Probably every member of the audience present at La Scala Cinematograph Theatre yesterday afternoon had in mind the tragedy which has overtaken the Southern Syncopated Orchestra. For that reason enthusiasm may not have been so pronounced, although the music was an advance on that heard at the previous concerts of the present series. The Dublin Symphony Orchestra has made remarkable strides since it was formed, and those who have been present at nearly all the concerts given in the theatre by this band of musicians give all credit to Mr. Vincent O'Brien. He estimates to a nicety just now what his orchestra can do.

The programme opened yesterday with Finck's "Pageant," a march calling for no special remark, except that it went with a good swing. Finer music was the Allegro Assai movement from Haydn's "Symphony in A," but it was in a dance from Moussorgsky's opera, "The Fair of the Sorotchintsi," that the orchestra really came into its own. The staccato passages were finely marked, and the light and shade effects well denoted. The overture from "Oberon," too, was a capital effort, and the audience would have liked to hear it again.

The vocalists yesterday were Mr. Robert Radford and Miss Christina Owens. The former has a deep bass voice of great power, though pleasantly modulated. His enunciation and expression were alike excellent. He sang, among many items—for singers at La Scala concerts have to be generous in the matter of encores—"She Alone Charmeth my Sadness," "In Sheltered Vale," and, of course, "Onaway, Awake." "In Cellar Cool," an encore, was particularly well appreciated. Miss Owens has a voice of great sweetness and purity—it might be called a drawingroom voice. She sang soprano songs which were eminently suited to it, notably "At my Window," Tosti's "Parted," with violin obbligato by that master of his instrument, Mr. Patrick Delaney; "Ever so Far Away," and "Comin' thro' the Rye." Miss Owens had a cold, but generously responded to calls for more. Miss Lucy Leenane accompanied, as she always does, very capably.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE YPRES LEAGUE.

Letter from Earl French

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—To large numbers of men who served in France and Flanders during the Great War, and to the relatives of many who fell in action, the name Ypres holds the most tragic and heroic memories. The defence of that old Salient, which was the way to the coast, cost the lives of 250,000 British soldiers, and in the three great battles of Ypres our liberties and honour as an Empire were saved by the supreme courage of our hard-pressed men.

At all times, and especially in the rainy seasons (which lasted so long), the Ypres Salient was a hard place for men who served there. In mud, in water-logged trenches, under continual gunfire which reached far behind the lines, it demanded a grim ordeal of service, so that ex-soldiers who say to each other now "I was at Ypres," have said enough. They understand each other. What Verdun means to France, Ypres means to us.

It is for that reason that an Ypres League has been formed. Its membership is open to all who served in the Salient, in order that they may have a record of that service for themselves and their descendants, and they belong to the comradeship of men who understand and remember all that Ypres meant in suffering and endurance. The Ypres Scroll, beautifully designed, is issued as a certificate of membership to those who pay a small subscription, and may also be obtained by relatives as a memorial of honour to those who fell in the Salient.

The Ypres League has other objects which should have, I think, a permanent interest. Preparations are already in hand to preserve at Ypres a Roll of Honour recording, if possible, the name of every soldier, who fell in the defence. It is also proposed to establish a Hostelry, where accommodation may be provided for those who wish to visit the graves and battlefields in the Salient, and where maps, information concerning historic sites, and guidance of every possible kind, will be available, the hostelry to be endowed with free beds for those who cannot afford a hotel. It is suggested that this Hostelry should become a special memorial of the Ypres League, its panelled walls recording the names in Divisions of those who fell in action thereabouts, and in other ways serving as a reminder of what happened on that ground.

For the purpose of founding that Hostelry funds will be needed beyond the annual subscription of membership, and I hope they may be generously forthcoming as a tribute to the spirit of the Ypres defence. Membership of the League is a privilege of which, I think, no soldier of whatever rank who served in the Salient should fail to avail himself, and I shall be very glad if any word of mine may assist the League to get that large membership by which alone its spirit and purpose may be fulfilled. Contributions to the erection of the hostelry should be thus earmarked and sent to the Secretary.

The Prince of Wales, as a soldier who knew the Salient well and as a Patron of the League, has written to say that he warmly supports the appeal which is being made, and trusts it will meet with a generous response.—Yours, etc.,

FREEDOM AND TRADE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Every man endowed with a sense of justice desires to see the release of the great body of Irishmen who were thrown into prison without accusation or trial. At the present moment leading organs in the British Press are calling for the withdrawal, under the truce, of the ban placed in Ireland on British machinery and goods. This life is a matter of give and take. Let the British Government recognise the spirit of the truce and release the prisoners, and in response let An Dail cancel the trade ban on British goods.—Yours, etc.,

HOTEL CHARGES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The anti-"profiteering" campaign pursued with such vigour in our leading newspapers has already made considerable impression against those to whom it is directed, and, no doubt, has alleviated the distress of many a hard-pressed household. Much has yet to be done, since the bald fact remains that the level of retail prices is infinitely higher than is warranted by the state of the wholesale markets, as we are in a position to prove. With one aspect of "profiteering" it is our bounden duty to deal.

The Irish Commercial Travellers' Federation, of which we are honorary officials, has for months past been receiving complaints from many of its members as to the outrageous charges still maintained by several hotel proprietors in Ireland, and has decided at this opportune time to make a determined stand against flagrant "profiteering" of that character. At our meeting last evening hotel bills were produced showing that members have been mulcted in the following manner:—Plain tea, 2s.; bed, 4s.; dinner, 4s. The actual cost of the tea, with bread, would not exceed 6d. That of the bed requires more reckoning than we could undertake, while the price of the dinner, measured by some of the qualities supplied, is outrageously high. On the three items enumerated we estimate that an average profit of from 200 to 300 per cent has been made. There are many honourable exceptions in "profiteering" among hotel proprietors, whose cases will be duly noted in a list which is being brought out; but the object of this letter is to urge upon all commercial travellers the necessity for assisting the sub-committee, which has been specially appointed to deal with excessive charges and irregularities, by sending their complaints to 37 Westmoreland street, Dublin, without delay.

During these times of business depression, when travellers are so severely tried, we feel confident that the steps we have been reluctantly obliged to take will assist you in the vigorous campaign you have been pursuing to bring about a reduction in the cost of living commensurate with the wholesale prices prevailing.—Yours, etc.,

DUBLIN'S LOCAL TRAINS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—During the continuance of Government control over the railways the public were inclined to blame the Government alone for any shortcomings in the railway services; but the trend of events since decontrol seems to show that the companies themselves are the real culprits. They will not realise that they should be the servants of the public, and not their masters, until the public take some steps to protect their own interests.

Take, for instance, the local service on the Great Northern Railway, touched on by "Disgruntled" in to-day's issue. The most general hours for business establishments to close are 5 and 6 o'clock p.m.; but we find two trains run, at 4.45 p.m. and 5.15 p.m., and then none until 6.45 p.m. For whose benefit the two early trains are needed, with such a short interval between, it would be hard to say; for the first is useless for business people, and the second can only be caught by a headlong rush after leaving work early, in order to avoid waiting till 6.45 p.m.

Again, it is impossible to go home after business and return again to visit a theatre or one's friends in town, even on the two nights in the week when residents in Malahide and Portmarnock are graciously permitted to stay late in town. There is no train to the city between that reaching Amiens street at 6.15 p.m. and the last train in, at 9.45 p.m. How long will the travelling public put up with this abuse of a monopoly? Is there no court of appeal or are the railway company to continue to dictate to the public and ignore their needs?—Yours, etc.,

"SUBSCRIBER."

WOMEN AND HOUSING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—My Committee welcomes your article on "Women and Housing" in to-day's paper. We have urged on young women seeking a profession to study architecture, and think that until women seriously take up the question of building better houses, both for comfort and beauty, we may despair of making much advancement in convenient houses for family life. We cannot agree with the member of the Housing Committee of the Dublin Corporation, and wonder whether it is the view of the one woman sitting on that Committee. Workers' cottages are now being built in the city by the Corporation without any up-to-date conveniences, such as hot water, bath, shelves, and cupboards. These cottages, which are crowded together, are out-of-date before they are finished. I trust that your article will serve to arouse the interest of many Irishwomen.—Yours, etc.

DONEGALL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In column 6 of page 7 of to-day's Irish Times the writer states that the spelling "Donegall is one of the anomalies of which there are several instances in the Irish peerage." The meaning of this observation is obscure. The spelling is also found in the name of a well-known thoroughfare in Belfast, and, so far as the final syllable is concerned, goes back several centuries earlier than 1647—the original form being Dún na nGall, "stronghold of the foreigners."—Yours, etc.,

PHŒNIX PARK FASHIONS.

SUMMER TOILETTES.

(BY OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

Though this is the month traditionally dedicated to hunting, other branches of sport have their innings, and as for an October race meeting there is never any doubt about its popularity, more especially when the fixture happens to be the Phœnix Park Club, where grand sport and enjoyment are always assured.

Such was the record on Saturday, when an excellent programme was provided in the abnormally fine weather that is successfully banishing all thoughts of winter. Fewer strangers, perhaps, than usual were present, but the members mustered strong, and many brought large parties.

The Lord Lieutenant and Viscountess FitzAlan of Derwent, attended by Captain the Hon. Gerald Browne, the Royal Dragoons, Aide-de-Camp, were present, and occupied the Viceregal Stand, which, as usual, was artistically decorated with flowers. Lady FitzAlan, who was wearing a golden-brown knitted silk costume, with a brown toque, trimmed with ostrich feathers, received a number of friends on the stand during the afternoon, as did His Excellency, who was chatting with the Lord Chancellor for some time.

The members' lawn looked quite gay, so many ladies having donned quite summery toilettes, while many of the new-fashioned colours and trimmings were en evidence, particularly in millinery, which was very smart and effective.

Among those present were Frances Marchioness Conyngham and her daughter, Lady Blanche Seymour, who is staying with her at Slane Castle; the Hon. Lady McCalmont, in tête de nègre silk stockinette, with a brown velvet hat; the Hon. Mrs. Barry, in black and white foulard, and white un-curled ostrich feathers in her black hat, was accompanied by Major Barry, and her daughter, Mrs. Fleischman, looking very smart in black, with a small black velvet toque; Mr. and Lady Mary Corbally, the latter in dark mole cloth; Mr. Baring and the Hon. Mrs. Baring, the latter in white silk, spotted in black, and a black hat. With them came the Hon. Mrs. Burden (Lord Fermoy's sister), in a lovely toilette of grey crêpe de Chine, and a large black picture hat, with sweeping ostrich plumes.

HOCKEY SEASON OPENS.

A BRISK BEGINNING.

It is not fair, perhaps, to be too critical upon the opening day of the League season, particularly when it happens upon a day of such intense warmth as on Saturday. It will suffice, therefore, to say that all went off most encouragingly, and out of five games listed in the Senior Division four were duly played, the fifth fixture, between Three Rock Rovers and Clontarf, on the Rovers' ground at Foxrock, coming to nothing owing to the visiting team not putting in an appearance for some unexplained reason—some misunderstanding, no doubt.

MONKSTOWN (1) v. KINGSTOWN GRAMMAR SCHOOL (0).

No little interest locally was evinced in the debut of Kingstown Grammar School in Senior hockey, and it fell out quite happily that their near neighbours, Monkstown, took them on in the opening match, played at Crosthwaite Park, Kingstown. As a matter of fact, Grammar School did very well; but, if they were only beaten by one goal to nothing, there was some luck in this, for Monkstown had a couple of scores disallowed, and, had the shooting been better, might have scored more than they did. The winning goal, indeed, was sent in by Rowlands in the first half, he following up a shot from a corner, and netting the ball from the rebound off the goalkeeper's pads. Both forward lines need a bit more practice in shooting. The game, on the whole, was good for the time of year, and the pace was fast throughout. The half lines seemed to dominate the play, and the feature of the match, perhaps, was the display of E. Gibson in the Grammar School goal, he making some very fine saves.

ROYAL HIBERNIANS (5) v. NAAS (1).

Few who saw the play in the first half of this match in the Park was prepared for the reversal of form which the second period produced. From the opening bully the Naas forwards dominated the play, and the present day weakness of Royal Hibernians was painfully apparent. They tried to be, but were not, a team at this period, whereas Naas were together nicely, and it was only a question of time when the latter would score. It took some time, however, to do so, and then Semmence got a chance and rushed one in. Very soon after Cork had an opening and equalised, and the teams crossed over with the score 1 goal all. In the next half Hibernians became a team, and it seemed a result of Cork and Parslow playing to each other; for the effect seemed to give the others the confidence they had hitherto lacked. Naas seemed taken by surprise, and early on a rally round their goal, in which Hibernians rained in shots, showed the different aspect of the game. Eventually Hibernians got the lead from a lightning shot by Cork off a corner hit, and soon after he did the trick a second time. Then Parslow was within an ace of scoring, but was knocked out momentarily when in the act of doing so. But soon after he put a goal to his credit, and before full time Cork slipped in a fifth score. The game, on the whole, was good for the period of the season, and the feature of it easily was Cork's lightning shots and their accuracy.

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY (3) v. R. AND S.P.U. (2).

There was very little between the respective sides in this match at Park avenue, and Trinity were lucky to win by the odd goal; it might have happened very easily, indeed, that a draw or a win for Railway Union might have been the outcome. Railway, indeed, started well when C. Sully scored in the first minute. Midway through the period M'Donagh equalised, but before the interval was reached H. Sully put Railway ahead again. Early in the concluding half M'Donagh again equalised the score, and later on scored from a penalty corner the goal which won the match. Before the close Railway tried all they knew to draw level again, but to no avail. Taking it on the whole, it was an excellent game, with good play well apparent. Both teams, too, stood the strain of the pace, and it was trying in the close weather.

EAST SURREYS (1) v. ROYAL BERKS (0).

Neither side was at anything like full strength in this match, nor was the ground at Portobello a suitable pitch for a game, and between one thing and another the match was a scrappy affair and did not reflect the fair merits of either team. Midway through the first period Sergeant Richards scored the winning goal for East Surreys.

IRISH LADIES' HOCKEY UNION.

The annual general meeting will be held on Wednesday, 12th inst., in the Royal College of Surgeons (by kind permission) at 3.30 o'clock.

LONDON TO BRIGHTON WALK.

This interesting event, organised by the Surrey Walking Club, was decided on Saturday, when, in a "field" of fifty-seven starters, the remarkable little Italian champion, de Pavesi, was an easy winner, his time being 7 hrs. 37 mins. 27 3-5 secs. This is a long way from the record of 7hrs. 11 mins. 14 secs., made by H. V. Ross in 1909, while last year Ross won in 7 hrs. 15 mins. 58 secs. On Saturday Ross was again competing, and for three miles was shoulder to shoulder with de Pavesi. The two rapidly left the rest of the field. Despite the great heat of the day, a cold haze prevailed during the early stages of the walk, and, altogether, the conditions were very trying. Pavesi, in wonderful condition, strode on gallantly until at Streatham Common (six and a half miles from the start) he was leading Ross by seven minutes. Subsequently he increased the distance between them until at Crawley, roughly thirty miles from London, Ross retired. Afterwards the Italian went on by himself, completing the long journey of 52 miles apparently little distressed. The order of finishing was:—Donato de Pavesi (Molinari A.C.), 7 hrs. 37 mins. 27 3-5 secs., 1; W. Atkinson (Southgate A.A.), 9 hrs. 15 mins. 21 2-5 secs., 2; J. H. Allen (Belgrave H.), 9 hrs. 16 mins. 53 secs., 3; A. F. Hubbard (Surrey W.C.), 9 hrs. 23 mins. 28 3-5 secs., 4; J. Chalk (Belgrave H.), 9 hrs. 31 mins. 35 1-5 secs., 5; C. H. Wells (Surrey A.C.), 9 hrs. 32 mins. 25 2-5 secs., 6.

SHOT DEAD ON ROADSIDE.

MYSTERIOUS CRIME.

A mysterious crime was perpetrated at Altnagelvin, two miles from Londonderry, on Saturday night, when John James Buchanan, farmer, Lisglas, Co. Derry, was murdered.

Buchanan, who was the Master of the local Orange Lodge, and was aged 32, had been in Derry with a horse and cart, selling buttermilk, and was returning home, about 7 o'clock, when the crime was committed. He was obviously "held up" by armed men, and resisted.

While it is suggested that the motive was robbery, it is a curious fact that money was found in his pocket, and a wallet, containing £ notes, was found in the cart, which, with the horse, was discovered some distance from the scene of the crime.

Having committed the foul deed the assailants escaped, leaving Buchanan's body with a bullet wound below the right arm pit, lying on his back on the middle of the road, near a graveyard.

Several pedestrians afterwards passed, but, thinking that the body was that of a drunken man, did not examine it. Later two men, examining it, had the Londonderry Constabulary notified, and a party of police motored to the scene. The body was removed to the deceased's house, where his mother and brother reside.

Many people in the district heard the fatal shot, and Buchanan's servant, who, with another man, was going out, not only heard the shot, but actually saw the flash, and, thinking that there was trouble, returned home.

Buchanan, on one occasion, discussing the possibility of a "hold up," said that he would resist anyone who attacked him.

TEACHERS' STRIKE.

DUBLIN SCHOOLS PICKETTED.

The dispute between the Dublin Technical Education Committee and the Technical Teachers' Association has come to a head, and from to-day pickets will be on duty outside the several schools in the city.

The decision to adopt this course was taken at a meeting on Saturday night,

> "in view of the continued refusal of the County Borough Technical Education Committee" to submit the dispute to the Minister for Education of Dáil Eireann.

The correspondence which led to this action on the part of the teachers opened on 25th September, when the Teachers' Association intimated their willingness to accept the arbitration of the Minister for Education, and added that, pending the result of the arbitration, the teachers would not take up duty in the schools.

Three letters followed on the question of the points to be submitted, and then the Association stated the points specifically. They were:—

1—The change of practice attempted by the Technical Education Committee in advertising yearly en bloc all the posts of part-time teachers, and
2—The non-appointment of old part-time teachers without legitimate reason.

To this letter Mr. L. E. O'Carroll, Secretary to the Education Committee, replied that the Chairman did not think it advisable to call another meeting, and the Association's letter would be submitted to the next ordinary meeting, which would be held on Wednesday, 12th October.

In view of this letter the Teachers' Association decided to place pickets outside the schools.

BREAKING UP SHIPS.

In view of the present state of unemployment in Great Britain, the Admiralty have decided to sell surplus and obsolete warships at moderate prices for breaking up by firms who will undertake to begin work upon the ships as soon as sale has been completed.

Cash payments are not to be insisted upon, and payment of the purchase price by instalments will be arranged for the convenience of purchasers of good standing.

Sale on attractive terms is offered with the object of providing increased employment, and a preference will be given to buyers who undertake to employ on the work of shipbreaking a substantial proportion of men of the Royal Fleet Reserve.

All inquiries and communications on the subject should be addressed to the Director of Navy Contracts, Admiralty, S.W.1.

NEW GOLF CHAMPION.

MISS STIRLING BEATEN IN AMERICAN FINAL.

The United States Ladies' Golf Championship which concluded at Deal (N.J.) on Saturday, was noteworthy for the defeat of the British and American champions. Miss C. Leitch had been eliminated in the second round, beaten on the last green by Miss Letts, and with the British lady out of the way it looked plain sailing for the holder of the title, Miss Stirling.

In the final over 36 holes on Saturday, however, Miss Marion Hollins, of the Westbrook Club, sprung another surprise. At the end of the first round she was leading four holes, and four holes from home the title changed hands, Miss Stirling being then no fewer than five in arrears. This year's new champion competed in the British Ladies' Championship, and was beaten only on the last green by Miss C. Leitch.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Markets follow much the same routine as previously for miscellaneous every-day trade commodities. Values, however, in most branches carry but little confidence, and only in specialities for prompt delivery are quotations readily responded to. There are no fresh developments of general interest or importance to record in the industrial world. London and Australian wool sales for Colonial fleeces still show a hardening tone, owing to active Continental buying. In Irish wool, however, matters remain dull and slumpy.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

There is evidently a good deal of forced liquidation in progress, and while this is the case a policy of caution is advisable. It is useless to pay too much attention to intrinsic merits when the main consideration is to realise anything that can be turned into ready cash. It is equally unwise to sacrifice good securities in such markets as prevail at present, because sooner or later the liquidation will be ended, and the turn will come. For some time past the Sunday Times has advised readers to "play for safety" by investing in gilt-edged stocks, and the firmness of this group is our justification. High-class Industrial Debenture Stocks also enjoy a good market, and will probably appreciate in value as the trade revival becomes more pronounced. British costs of production are being steadily reduced, and the increased banking facilities which it is hoped will be provided under the Government scheme should give a further stimulus to foreign trade. Holders of Preference and Ordinary shares in well-managed Industrial companies should, therefore, await better times before realising. Among the more speculative Industrials, Bengal Irons, at their present low level of about 25/-, which compares with a highest last year of 3⅝, look a hopeful lock-up. The company's iron deposits are estimated at over 1,000,000 tons of ore, labour is cheap and plentiful, and there is a ready local market for the products. Here, again, the exchange factor comes into operation, but experts consider that the value of the rupee is more likely to rise than to fall.

It would appear from the movement in the Stock Market in Mason and Barry Shares that the negotiations for the sale of the company's assets in Portugal are proceeding satisfactorily, and that a good price will be realised. These assets stood at £145,000 in the last balance sheet, while the share capital was £185,000. The other assets, less liabilities, amounted to a little over £100,000 at book values, though some may be worth more. In so far as the total works out at about 25/- a share, the Portuguese assets would require to realise a good deal in excess of the balance sheet valuation in order to justify the present price of the shares. Probably they will, for in the past they yielded shareholders over two and a quarter millions sterling.

We are officially informed by the General Reinsurance Company that the two calls of 5/- per share, payable on the 15th inst. and on January 15 next, respectively, not being required, have been cancelled, and a circular to this effect is being issued to the shareholders.

Although the directors of the Lamson Paragon Supply Co. are of opinion that the net profits for the half-year to July 31st last would permit the payment of the usual interim dividend on the Ordinary Shares, they have decided, having regard to the uncertainty of the outlook for trade generally, to postpone the declaration of the Ordinary dividend until the close of the company's financial year.

At an extraordinary general meeting of Alaska Goldfields, to be held at Winchester House, London, E.C., on October 17, the following resolution will be proposed:—"That the capital of the company be reduced from £187,500, divided into 300,000 shares of 12/6 each, to £137,500, divided into 300,000 shares of 9.2 each, and that such reduction be effected by returning to the holders of the 250,000 shares which have been issued paid up capital to the extent of 3/4 per share, and by reducing the nominal amount of all the shares from 12/6 to 9/2."

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

DISCOUNT RATES NOT AFFECTED BY "TAP" RATE.

Very little business was done in Lombard street on Saturday. With a plenitude of supplies and a moderate demand for credit, rates were inclined to ease off. Renewals over the week-end were done at 3¼ per cent.; but 3 per cent. was the general rate for fresh money, while at the end transactions were reported at 2½ per cent.

In fixing the rate on "additional" Treasuries at 3¾ per cent. the authorities have only acted in accordance with the results of Friday's tenders. The reduction had no appreciable effect upon commercial bill rates, which were, perhaps, easier in tendency. The new Treasuries changed hands at 4 per cent.

For commercial bills 4 per cent. was quoted for "twos," 4¼ per cent. for "threes," and 4¼-⅜ per cent. for "fours."

Chinese support caused a general advance in silver of ⅛d. to 42⅛d. spot and 42⅛d. forward.

Foreign exchanges were quieter than they have been for months past. Sterling was firmer. French francs and the mark weakened.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday.—Values of live hogs at Chicago showed an improvement, but speculative products generally easier, and while arrivals at this port of BACON recently have been small, stocks remain liberal, and demand still very slow, with sellers in consequence again offering freely of all descriptions, with prices generally favouring buyers. HAMS still inactive, with sellers easy to approach, though late prices are nominally unaltered. Shoulders dull at the recent decline for squares and New Yorks, but picnics steady, with supplies relatively scarce. Canadian Wiltshires meet little inquiry, the recent decline failing to stimulate buyers. Irish bacon is reduced in value, being now quoted about 150/- to 168/- per cwt., very light and heavy averages being most affected. Continental has also given way for Danish, which is now at 168/- to 170/-, and Swedish 154/- to 160/- per 112lbs. LARD on the spot shows no material change, only a moderate inquiry being experienced, with American refined in boxes 74/- to 75/6 per cwt. CHEESE quiet, without further alteration. BUTTER quiet, with best qualities only wanted. EGGS firm and again dearer, with Irish 29/6 to 31/-, and Canadian 27/- to 27/6 per 120. Sales—October 71/6 to 71/9, November 69/6, and 66/3 bid for December delivery.

DUBLIN POTATO, Saturday.—Supplies beyond requirements, in face of poor consumptive demand. General town price for prime quality stuff is 5/6 to 6/- per cwt., but former figure represents bulk of business practicable, and, with a weak undertone, 6/- is hard to make.

LEICESTER WOOL, Saturday.—Not a great deal of wool is left in the farmers' hands, and transactions are few at firm prices. Manufacturers of hosiery are still finding it difficult to get many orders for ordinary underwear, but certain branches of specialities are moving freely. Taking the trade all round there is a good deal of short time being worked. Matters are the same in the yarn trade.

LONDON FREIGHTS—Saturday.

There was practically no change in the general conditions ruling at the week-end market, the attendance of operators being small, and consequently business proved on a limited scale. The River Plate section disclosed rather more inquiry of late, but actual fixtures remain few and far between, largely due to the unsettled and depressed conditions in the grain market. Steamers to load heavy grain from upper ports October indicate 20/-, with 1/3 less down river loading U.K.-Continent, with usual options. North American fairly steady, with a moderate inquiry from Continental and Mediterranean ports for heavy grain, and rates generally steady. Montreal to U.K. 4/3 to 4/6 as to size and loading date, with 4/3 from American Northern States, and West Italy 5/3 per quarter. Eastern market dull. Bombay Karachi 30/- on dead weight, while outports meet with quiet attention at late rates. Australian quieter and rates easy at about 58/9 to 63/9 according to loading port. IMPROVING TRADE.

EXPORTS RISING AND IMPORTS FALLING.

The Board of Trade returns issued on Saturday for September show the value of British exports during the month as £55,247,578—the highest value recorded since April, and £3,901,271 more than for August. This increase of nearly £4,000,000 in the value of our exports is accompanied by a decrease of £1,462,533 in the value of imports, representing a total improvement of £5,300,000 in the adverse balance of our trade. The increased export values are all accounted for under the heading of manufactured articles, which totalled £44,009,013 in September, against £93,935,627 in August. Incidentally the increases are accounted for as follows:—Manufactured iron and steel, £1,300,000; cotton manufactures, £2,100,000; earthenware and glass, £250,000; chemicals and dyes, £200,000.

The coal export during the month increased in bulk—3,406,579 tons, against 3,103,207 in August—but in value was nearly £500,000 less. The assertion that, in view of the safeguarding of industries, duties which become operative from October 1, heavy imports of chemicals had been made in the immediately preceding weeks appears to be supported by the following comparison of August and September imports:—Acetic acid, September 422 tons, August 180 tons; tartaric acid, 3,882 cwts.—2,463 cwts.; bleaching materials, 5,981 cwts.—2,491 cwts.; calcium carbide, 66,825 cwts.—38,663 cwts.; saltpetre, 16,004 cwts.—9,883 cwts.; sodium nitrate, 57,412 cwts.—19,197 cwts. The total value of chemical imports of all kinds, though many individually showed a decrease in quantity, was £984,030, or nearly 30 per cent. more than in August.

EFFECT OF COAL STOPPAGE.

September concludes the first quarter of the year since the coal stoppage ended, and the following comparison of export values is interesting:—Coal stoppage quarter:—

April	£59,867,585
May	£43,088,418
June	£38,152,238

After coal stoppage:—

July	£43,172,399
August	£51,346,307
September	£55,247,578

A decrease of a million sterling in our imports of manufactured articles—all under the heading of oils, fats, and resins—is counterbalanced by an increase of a million sterling in the value of other imports of raw materials, mainly cotton.

The decreased value of the food imports occurs mainly in respect of dairy and garden produce. A drop of £1,500,000 in the value of meat imported is counterbalanced by an increase of nearly the same magnitude in the import value of grain and flour.

Imports during September and the nine months of the year were:—

1921	£87,115,507	£827,674,470
1920	£152,757,136	£1,501,412,239
1913	£61,355,725	£557,766,699

Exports during September and the nine months were:—

1921	£55,274,574	£518,661,311
1920	£117,455,913	£1,007,278,036
1913	£42,425,474	£390,761,901

The re-exports during September and the nine months were:—

1921	£8,594,644	£77,639,668
1920	£13,350,608	£180,458,482
1913	£6,852,403	£82,364,140

LIVERPOOL MEAT IMPORTS.

Nine steamers landed cattle, sheep and lamb carcases, pork, and fresh beef at Liverpool during the past week from overseas ports. There was a large increase in the number of frozen sheep and lamb carcases. The vessels, with their freights, were as follows:—The Kut, from Campana, with 10,256 qrs. of beef; the Empress of France, from Quebec, with 645 carcases of pork and 340 qrs. of beef; the Manchester City, from Puertes Bories, with 146,758 sheep and lamb carcases; the Baltic, from New York, with 216 boxes of pork and 1,670 boxes of meat; the Canada, from Montreal, with 266 bales and 511 boxes of beef; the Desna, from Buenos Ayres, with 12,440 sheep and lamb carcases, 1,140 carcases of pork, and 35,843 qrs. of beef; the Celtic Star, from Zarate, with 4,525 sheep and lamb carcases and 12,134 qrs. of beef; the Winifredian, from Boston, with 763 cattle; and the Manchester Corporation, with 716 cattle—making a total of 1,479 cattle, 163,723 sheep and lamb carcases, 2,001 boxes and carcases of pork, 2,841 boxes of meat, and 58,573 qrs. of beef. Compared with the arrivals of the preceding week these figures show an increase of 129,543 sheep and lamb carcases, 1,377 carcases, etc., of pork, 284 boxes of meat, and 26,103 qrs. of beef, and a decrease of 186 live cattle.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

VALUE OF THE £ ABROAD.

The general purchasing power of sterling in countries outside the United Kingdom followed up its improvement in August by another increase in September, according to the foreign exchange index numbers compiled by the Statist. The index number for September is 114.6, which compares with 113.0 in August and 112.9 in July. In September of last year the figure was 100.2. The calculations for each month are based on the average daily cable rates on 28 of the principal countries. In reviewing the changes during the month, the Statist observes that the improvement recorded in the value of the £ abroad is by no means an unmixed advantage. While it includes a slight rise in the New York exchange, a movement that can be welcomed unreservedly, it is also in large measure due to depreciation of the currencies of, among others, France, Belgium, and Italy, a movement that is calculated to restrict further purchases by these countries from us. Off-setting the so-called "favourable" changes were "adverse" movements in the South American and Far Eastern groups of exchanges. The former, though unavoidable, are to be regretted as occurring in the midst of the harvest season. The most striking change during September was that recorded by the German mark. The rate on Berlin rose through a series of spectacular oscillations from 320 at the commencement of the month to 476 towards the close. The average rate of 387¾ for September compares with 203 in September, 1920. The fundamental cause of the depreciation is the large Government revenue deficit, chiefly due to reparation payments, which is being covered by creation of fictitious values in the shape of fresh issues of paper money and short-term borrowing. Unless revenue and expenditure can be equalised, the German mark bids fair to follow in the path of the Austrian crown.

One of the main features of the monthly bank statements for September is that the holding of bills has increased during the month by 14 millions. Considering the slackness of trade this may be presumed to represent chiefly increased holdings of Treasury bills (says the Westminster Gazette). This movement has been accompanied by an increase of 8 millions in deposits, and of only a little over a million in total cash. Broadly speaking, therefore, the course has been not far from normal. How this movement develops will depend to a large extent upon the way in which the Government has to borrow. A significant movement, too, is a drop of over 12 millions in advances to 804 millions; and when it is recalled that in March last this item totalled 880 millions, it will readily be seen how great has been the falling off in the accommodation which the banks have been called upon to provide. As the total of advances has been declining the total of bills has been increasing, and with a continuance of trade depression are likely to continue so to do.

ARGENTINE RAILWAY DIVIDENDS.

The directors of both the Buenos Aires Great Southern and the Buenos Aires Western Railway have declared a final dividend of 2 per cent., making, with the interim payments of last spring, a total of 4 per cent. for the year to June 30 last in both cases, but they also announce that owing to the earnings not having been sufficient to provide these payments they are withdrawing from the reserve funds £500,000 in the case of the Buenos Aires Western and £550,000 in that of the Buenos Aires Great Southern. Dividend anticipations have, since the close of the financial year in June last (says the Stock Exchange Gazette), varied considerably. The interim dividends were stated to have not been earned, and, as the receipts of the second six months had not shown the improvement previously anticipated, there were many in the market who did not expect any final dividend, while there were others who anticipated that the boards would draw sufficient from their big reserve funds to make the dividends up to 5 per cent. in both cases. The Buenos Aires Great Southern has done better than was anticipated, for no one expected the amount available to be more than about £670,000, or sufficient to pay about 2 per cent., and on the face of it this would mean that a similar amount would have been withdrawn from reserves, whereas only £550,000 is to be taken from reserves. The reverse is the case with the Buenos Aires Western, which should have earned a surplus of about £250,000, and it only needed as much to be taken from reserves to make up the 4 per cent. dividend. The issue of the reports in both cases will be awaited with considerable interest in view of the many favourable and unfavourable factors in the Argentine railway situation at the moment which make it difficult to gauge the future.

Rumour credits the Cowdray interests with supporting the oil market. This may or may not be true, but it is reasonable to infer that the large buying that has taken place has been on behalf of people who are in possession of first-hand information concerning the actual position of the company. Our (Sunday Times) readers will recall that the saline invasion of the fields was foreshadowed by the company itself as far back as last March, but it was then stated that there was no ground for investors in the Mexican Eagle Oil Company to share the alarm expressed by the small companies, whose fortunes were bound up in one small producing area. It was pointed out that the Eagle Company held oil rights over 1,000,000 acres, which had been chosen by geologists after very careful investigation. We imagine that if any statement be issued by the company in the immediate future the foregoing facts will again be emphasised. What has happened cannot, of course, be construed as a bull point for the company. On the contrary, it is a bear point, but one that has been very greatly discounted by the recent fall in the shares. Sharp fluctuations in all the leading shares must be expected until the atmosphere is less obscure; but the balance of opinion in oil circles is that the worst has been seen. The other leading oil shares, such as Shells, Royal Dutch, and Burmahs, were naturally weak, and the rest of the market, although quiet, proved sensitive to minor realisations.

SOUTH WALES COAL MUDDLE.

The position in the South Wales coal industry, where the closing down of important collieries employing 60,000 men is threatened is still one to cause uneasiness (says The Statist). The period for helping the industry by the Government subsidy expired on September 30, and on that date £3,000,000 out of £10,000,000 was still unexpended. It appears that the mine-owners misinterpreted the details of the Government settlement, and find that they have to bear a larger proportion of the wages than they originally thought. They now ask the Government for £300,000 out of the unexpended portion of the subsidy, stating that this will be sufficient to recoup them for the difference. The Department of Mines, however, appears to insist on its technical rights and is apparently determined to resist the appeal of the mine-owners. This attitude, however, though true to the letter, is contrary to the spirit of the Government settlement, and it is to be hoped that the Department will now waive its claim on a paltry £300,000, which appears to be all that is required to enable the pits to remain open.

Difficulties are gradually accumulating which will increase the anxiety of holders of Industrial securities. Experts have expressed the opinion that there are two or three years of trade depression ahead. They are probably right (writes Truth). Many companies have come to the end of their tether so far as liquid resources are concerned. Resort to prior charge issues has given temporary relief, but new patches are not destined to strengthen old garments, and it is to be feared that drastic reconstruction will become the rule rather than the exception. The troubles of the past week have been accentuated by the Welsh coal crisis and the passing of preference dividends by prominent companies engaged in staple industries. In addition to labour troubles, Iron and Steel shares have been depressed by the announcement that the Argentine Iron and Steel Company, which paid a dividend of 4 per cent. on its Ordinary Shares a year ago, is not in a position to declare a dividend on the Preference Shares, which received 7 per cent. in the previous year. The United Steel Companies, Limited, have also passed their final Ordinary dividend, and the distribution for the year is therefore confined to the interim payment of 3 per cent., which compares with 10 per cent. for the whole of the previous year. Textiles have been upset by the passing of the half-yearly dividend on the 8 per cent. Cumulative Preference Shares of Mann, Byars, and Company, the wholesale warehousemen of Glasgow. The prospectus of this company, issued in June, 1920, showed average profits sufficient to cover the dividend four times. Joshua Hoyle Ordinary Shares have been weighed down by the new Debenture issue, which was foreshadowed in these columns some time ago. Courtaulds have fallen sharply owing to liquidation, which is attributed to a deceased estate. Another weak feature has been Dunlops. The market in these shares is very sensitive owing to the large floating supply of shares, but there are other reasons for the weakness. Rumours are current that a drastic reorganisation of the company's finances is contemplated. The shares have fallen to 7s. 1½d., and are freely talked down to 5s. British American Tobaccos have failed to maintain their recovery. It is estimated that the dividend for the year may possibly be reduced from 30 per cent. tax free to 22½ per cent. net.

There has been a much easier tendency in evidence throughout the week, which has communicated itself to the stock and share market as far as West African trading companies are concerned (writes our Liverpool Commercial Correspondent). Such concerns as African and Eastern Corporation, Lever Bros., and British Oil Cakes showing a considerable decline on the week. A fair amount of speculative selling is responsible for bringing down palm kernels to £19 10s. for spot, and though covering by shorts has led to a few fluctuations the quotation is still at this figure, with forward positions ruling at a small discount. Early in the week consumers were fairly good buyers, but the continuance of the decline has kept them off the market, and at present there is no disposition to trade. Quotations at Antwerp are about £22, and at Hamburg about £22 5s. The import figures for the month of September show that the large movement which set in during August has been continued, the monthly arrivals being the largest, with the exception of August, for nearly three years. Imports during September were 25,828 tons, of which 19,457 tons came to Liverpool, the balance being divided between Hull and other ports. For the nine months of this year to date the imports have amounted to 165,129 tons, as compared with 172,891 tons for the corresponding period of last year. The imports of palm oil during September amounted to 3,809 tons, making a total for the nine months of 37,711 tons, as against 80,341 tons for the first nine months of last year. The deliveries, however, have only been 43,533 tons for the nine months, against 75,211 tons a year ago. The Liverpool stock at this date amounts to 3,261 tons, against 9,519 tons. The palm oil market during the week has been somewhat sluggish, but still the sales are estimated at 2,300 tons. The movement, throughout has been against sellers, although it cannot be said that there has been any great selling pressure, but the absolute indifference of consumers has resulted in a decline in the quotations of better grade oils of fully 50s. per ton, Lagos being now quoted on the basis of £40. The amount of business passing in copra is on a very small scale, although there are indications of a slight improvement from the dulness which has prevailed during the last couple of months. Prices are about 20s. per ton lower, and this is acting as a likely attraction to consumers. The most encouraging feature in this market is the active demand for near positions at Marseilles. Nut oils have experienced another week of stagnation, with quotations lower in all cases and buyers very reserved. The same may be said of refined oils, where, notwithstanding generous concessions on the part of refiners, quotations are much lower than a week ago. The only firm market is that for cocoa, where a steady business continues for spot, especially for fine and fair fermented.

AMERICAN MARKETS.

STOCKS CLOSED STRONG.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, Saturday.

Stocks opened irregular, and soon advanced under the leadership of Oils and Tobaccos. The success of pool operations in domestic Oils and the strength of sterling exchange, combined with further substantial advances in the United States War Bonds and the rapid absorption of new Bond issues, encouraged a more general demand for long account, and the market closed strong.
